The Great Bolivar

Spain, China, Trouble

Silver Too Cheap

By Arthur Brisbane

LET THOSE THAT torment themselves with foolish fears, and permit their fears to interfere with business, and the return of prosperity, ask themselves these questions:

Have we not had depressions before? Did we not then think that the end of the world was coming? Did not men go about, shaking their heads, saying:

"Yes, but this is a different kind of depression; we never had anything like this."

Those that have been in business a reasonable length of time recall the head-shaking, moaning and groaning of 1907.

Haven't there been good times since 1907? Didn't business "pick up," to put it mildly, after 1907? Haven't we, since then, added hundreds of billions to the country's wealth?

And haven't we got everything now that we ever had?

Could anything be more stupid than talk and action of a kind harmful to business, to banks and other institutions, upon which the prosperity of us all AND EVERY MAN'S EMPLOYMENT depend absolutely?

Twenty-three years ago, on October 26, 1907, when many were taking their money out of banks, making a bad condition worse, as some are doing now, there was published widely a useful statement headed, "A Word to the Thoughtless." It said:

"To the wise no word is necessary. Men of knowledge understand full well that the country was never more prosperous, and that a panic in the midst of such unexampled industrial and commercial activity as this nation has recently enjoyed, and still enjoys, is a grotesque absurdity.

"The reasoning of those persons who are now participating in runs upon perfectly solvent banking institutions is on a par with that of those citizens who think, because they merely pay rent, they need not have the same concern about the conduct of government as those who own property.

"The informed man knows that those who pay rent are as much taxpayers as those who own the houses in which they live. Their concern with government is equally as great as that of the property owners.

"Likewise, the man who draws money from a perfectly solvent bank, in such a time as this, instead of protecting himself, may be promoting his own undoing.

"Credit is the life of business. If banks fail, business will totter. If business is wrecked, employment will cease. And what will it profit a man if he get his small hoard from a bank at the price of his business or of his job?

The statement was signed William Randolph Hearst."

What was true then is true now. Those that allow themselves to become foolishly frightened when the country has lost nothing real, except its courage, hurt themselves and others.

Every intelligent person should know that what we call a dollar is used over and over again by many. The prosperity of the United States is not in cash. There are a few dollars at most for each American. We do our business with checks and credit, our real wealth is in land, mines, mills, factories.

In the whole of the United States there isn't enough money to pay the depositors in the savings banks alone if a lot of frightened fools started to draw it out, all at once.

High-spirited Americans in Wall Street, learning nothing from the past, are cowering like chickens when they see a hawk near the clouds, and in this case there is no hawk. The human chickens have squawked themselves into a state of fear. They emphasize their fears by selling stocks at prices far below those at which, later, they will buy them back. You can buy stocks, absolutely safe, that will continue paying dividends, at prices that yield 10 per cent on the investment, that cannot last long.

A great man, of whom the world knows too little, died 100 years ago today. Our Southern neighbor, Bolivia, is named for Simon Bolivar, who was born in Venezuela in 1783 and died in 1830, after giving freedom from Spain to Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Peru and Bolivia.

Born a rich man, his father an owner of much land and many slaves, Bolivar interested himself in human liberty and fought for it to his death.

He was a far-seeing statesman and lawmakers today might learn from him. He foresaw the trend and the difficulties of democracy, and his last proclamation as supreme

MEINS REJECTS POST AS JUDGE

One of the four special justices named to district court bench a week ago by Governor Allen rejected the appointment, it was learned today as more than 100 women thronged the Governor's Council Chamber to witness swearing in of Massachusetts' first two women judges.

Walter R. Meins, tax expert, who was named by the Governor as associate justice of Roxbury Court, revealed that on last Friday he sent to the governor a communication that Meins could not accept.

The tax expert said today:

"After most earnest consideration, I became convinced I should not take on the duties of special justice in addition to the duties of my present official position as State income tax assessor."

The two women judges sworn in were Mrs. Sadie Lipner Shulman named as an associate justice of Dorchester Court, and Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, named associate justice of Malden Court.

The other male justice sworn in was ex-Senator Thomas H. Bileau, who will preside as associate justice in West Roxbury Court.

STOCK MARKET CLOSES HIGH

New York, Dec. 17 (INS)—Bulls in the stock market today sprung the trap which they have been carefully constructing for the over-confident bears. After stocks had been pounded unmercifully in the first hour or two, the big bulls gave the signal which released the most powerful buying wave that has been seen in Wall Street in many a day. With a roar and a bang the market swung upward, many of the market favorites advancing 5 to 10 points in the next two hours. This was the first 5,000,000-share day since Oct. 10.

Some of the important ground gainers today included U. S. Steel, up about 4 points; Auburn Auto, up 10½; American Telephone & Telegraph, up 9 points from the low of the day; J. I. LINDSEY FREED IN CHURCH ROW BUT REBUKED

Charge of Disorderly Conduct Dismissed; Cathedral Leaders Spurn Complaint

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—A charge of disorderly conduct against former Judge Ben Lindsey was dismissed today by Magistrate Dreyer.

The complaint was made out by a police officer charging the Denver jurist with interfering with a religious ceremony when he interrupted Bishop William T. Manning's assault on companionate marriage in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Dec. 7.

Then Magistrate Dreyer ordered a new complaint charge to be signed by a representative of the church. When nobody came forward to sign it, he threw the case out of court.

He rebuked Lindsey, however.

"You are a man of intelligence, you are a lawyer, you are a judge, you knew you were in church and you knew the law," Magistrate Dreyer told the proponent of companionate marriage. "If you told you were outraged you had your remedy.

"I always say if a man hurts my feeling I have the courts to go to. A church has a right to hold a divine service without interruption. The public should be given to know that dismissal of this complaint does not make it all right to interrupt church services."

FEAR EFFORT TO ENFORCE LAW WILL BE WEAKENED

Department of Justice to Seek Speedy Decision From Supreme Court

Washington, Dec. 17—Fearing a weakening of prohibition enforcement, some of the nation's dry leaders today urged immediate appeal to the Supreme Court from Federal Judge Clark's decision that the 18th Amendment is invalid.

Enforcement officials, after a series of worried conferences, approved the announcement that "the Supreme Court will be requested to set the case down for early argument."

Among participants in discussion of a means to combat immediate effects of the decision handed down in Federal court at Newark, N. J., yesterday were Atty.-Gen. Mitchell, Asst. Atty.-Gen. Youngquist, in charge of prohibition; Philip Forman, U. S. attorney at Newark, and Howard C. Jones, assistant prohibition director.

CONSEQUENCES FEARED

Fear that the opinion would have a demoralizing effect upon enforcement and a widespread influence on public opinion was expressed by the dry leader.

No dry would admit that the New Jersey jurist had found the loophole through which the 18th prohibitionists could oust the dry law from the statutes, but all admitted fear of consequences of his decision if it is not immediately overruled by the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, Prohibition Director Woodcock moved to continue the enforcement of prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment in New Jersey by telegram to Louis J. Tutt, deputy prohibition administrator at Newark, he said:

"Do not be discouraged by Judge Clark's decision. Carry on!"

SAYS LAW STILL EFFECTIVE

Forman's view of the situation was revealed in a telegram sent to all United States commissioners in the New Jersey district. It read as follows:

"Respectfully submit that administration of national prohibition act still effective in this district, notwithstanding decision of Judge Clark in Sprague-Howey. Other judges of this district not bound by his opinion until agreement by all of them or disposition of appeal. Prosecutions should continue. Should you not agree with this argument, please do not peremptorily discharge defendants but hold them to bail. Notify this office so that oral argument can be made before you.

"PHILIP FORMAN."

The decision of Judge Clark aroused widespread interest among the constitutional lawyers of Congress with many unwilling to pass judgment pending a study of the case.

FIVE NEW MEN ON COURT.

Officials of the Department of Justice expressed confidence that the decision would be overruled and that the decision of the Supreme Court in 1920 that the Eighteenth

Miss Margaret Sullivan, head nurse, led her charges in the rescue work of patients after she discovered the fire as it worked into her room on the top floor from the roof.

Fire officials estimated the damage at $10,000.

GIRL CHARGES JUDGE STOLE

Posthumous charges of embezzlement from the estate of Charles H. Harris, Boston theater manager, were hurled at the name of the late Judge J. Albert Brackett today in Middlesex court when Miss Emily Fuller, ticket seller and sole heir, opposed a petition for acceptance of Judge Brackett's accounting as administrator.

Miss Fuller also has a petition pending that charges embezzlement and asks the bonding company be responsible for the $12,000 estate.

Harris, in his will, left his entire estate to the blonde ticket girl and former actress, but she claims that Judge Brackett turned over only $720.

Harold J. Rogers, head bookkeeper of the First National Bank, was the first witness today. He told of disbursements in his records as alleged administrative costs of clearing the estate.

He admitted that Judge Brackett transferred the account of Harris from the Atlantic National Bank to the Old Colony Trust Co. before the latter merged with the First National Bank.

The new account was in the name of Judge Brackett as administrator, he said.

Miss Fuller, under questioning of her counsel, John J. Enwright, said she received no proceeds from $1500 worth of Liberty bonds in the estate, and shortly afterward Judge John C. Leggatt suspended the hearing indefinitely pending a ruling on a point of law.

A girl wrote it. The postman brought it yesterday. The Boston American Christmas Basket Fund Editor read it, then read it again. He read it a dozen times and he knows it by heart, now. Here it is:

"I am 15, a girl that looks after my six brothers and sisters because my mother is dead and my father goes to work at the factory when it is running, and I read in the paper yesterday that the baskets was having a turkey in them for Christmas.

"I have drawn a turkey from the pictures at Thanksgiving and Christmas for my six brothers and sisters but we have never had it.

"Please, if you can send a turkey or a part of a turkey to us in a basket we would say God bless you because we have never had it and the children would like to see what it is like and I would promise not to eat any myself but give it to the younger children if you would send it, because I have had a chicken once!"

NEW TEST OF VALIDITY OF DRY LAW WILL GO TO SUPREME COURT

Amendment is constitutional will continu. to stand.

The complexion of the Supreme Court has been radically changed since the Eighteenth Amendment was first upheld. Only four members of the court which upheld the amendment by a 5 to 4 decision are still on the bench. They are Justices Holmes, Vandevanter, McReynolds and Brandeis.

GRAHAM DISAGREES.

The new members who will pass on the case are Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Butler, Sutherland, Stowe and Roberts.

The decision of Judge Clark is effective only in his New Jersey jurisdiction, and only state liquor laws can be invoked in that district pending a further decision.

Rep. George S. Graham (R.) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House judiciary committee and widely known lawyer, does not agree as to the basis of Judge Clark's decision.

"If the decision is on the ground that legislatures could not ratify the amendment involving a transfer of powers of the state to the national government, I think it is wrong," he said.

Graham contends that under the bill of rights and Article 5 of the Constitution, amendments transferring state powers can be ratified by state legislatures, but amendments taking away rights of the people should be ratified by the people through constitutional conventions.

Atty.-Gen. Mitchell, Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock, Asst. Atty.-Gen. Youngquist, in charge of prohibition prosecutions, and many others in executive or quasi-judicial positions, refused to comment on Judge Clark's decision in any way.

CONGRESSMEN TALK

Not so members of Congress, however. The drys generally were resentful of his logic and unanimous in their prediction it will never stand the test of the Supreme Court.

Indicative of the vast confusion existing in the minds of some of the Senate's best known lawyers was their comment.

Sen. Walsh (D), of Massachusetts, excused himself with pointing out that Judge Clark's decision was based on an aspect of the prohibition question which had never been reviewed by the United States Supreme Court.

Senator Walsh said:

"Judge Clark has raised an aspect of the question which has been much discussed but on which no final ruling has ever been made.

"I hope this question, as well as many others involving the constitutionality of the Eighteenth Amendment will be passed on by the United States Supreme Court so the uncertain atmosphere on this issue may be cleared up.

As a result of Judge Clark's decision, all indictments in his court for alleged violation of the National Prohibition Law become null and void, Representative La Guardia (R.), of New York, House anti-prohibition leader, declared. He said:

"It means that every federal prohibition agent must be with drawn from that district. They cannot be used to enforce the State prohibition law.

"As a result of Judge Clark's opinion, I believe the administration at Washington should take notice and bring forth sane recommendations for restoring true temperance and not continue the impossible, and now unconstitutional, attempt at absolute prohibition."

RIDICULED BY SHEPPARD

Senator Morris Sheppard (D) of Texas, father of the Eighteenth Amendment, declared that he did not attach any importance to Judge Clark's decision. He said:

"Judge Clark's holding is utterly untenable and without foundation and will not be sustained if it reaches the Supreme Court.

"If Judge Clark's conclusion is right then every one of these other amendments is unconstitutional, such as the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth, abolishing slavery and giving citizenship to the Negroes."

Senator Goff (R.) of West Virginia, former assistant to the attorney-general, said:

"There is not a word of authority for such a decision. As assistant to the attorney-general, I argued the famous Volstead cases before the U. S. Supreme Court and the court held that the amendment was properly ratified."

TONIQUE, SAYS WATSON

Rep. Beck (R.), of Pennsylvania, anti-prohibition leader, and former Solicitor General of the United States, said:

"Having followed the case before Judge Clark, I feel certain his decision will reach the Supreme Court. Without having seen the decision, or having had time to study its many constitutional phases, I should hesitate to express any definite conclusions.'

Mrs. Peabody Says Her View Valueless So Won't Give It

The opinions of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, dry leader who quit this State because of the Baby Volstead Act repeal, have no value in Massachusetts. She admitted so herself today.

Having in mind that Judge Clark's decision on the invalidity of the prohibition law might cause the law to leave the country, the Boston American telegraphed her at Orlando, Fla., asking her for a statement on the decision.

"Many thanks. My opinion would have no value in Massachusetts," she promptly answered.

Validity of Dry Law Already Upheld, Says Volstead

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 17 (INS)—Declaring that the United States Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of the Eighteenth Amendment on other occasions, Andrew Volstead, author of the Volstead Enforcement Act, today commented briefly upon the ruling of Judge William Clark at Newark, N. J.

"The United States Supreme Court has been called upon before to rule upon the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment," the former Congressman said, "and each time the court has ruled the amendment valid."

Similar Case Pending in Court of Appeals

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—A liquor case in which the defense was the same as in the Supreme case in New Jersey is pending in Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

Daniel F. Cohalan, Selden Bacon, Prof. Leslie J. Tompkins of New York University and the other lawyers who appeared in the New Jersey case also presented argument in New York.

The case was brought to the Appeals Court from Vermont, where Louis E. Thibault of Windsor was found guilty of possession and sale of two pints of whiskey.

U. S. Will Try No More Dry Cases Before Clark

Washington, Dec. 17 (INS)—The Department of Justice will not try any further prohibition cases before Federal Judge William T. Clark in Newark N. J., in view of his decision that the Eighteenth Amendment is not properly a part of the Federal Constitution, it was learned today from official sources. Cases now pending will be, so far as possible, referred to other judges.

Officials declared the decision means no change in enforcement or procedure in other parts of the country.

Connecticut Jurist Unaffected by Ruling

Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 17 (AP)—Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas of Norwalk today declared the prohibition ruling handed down by Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey will have no effect on the administration of the Eighteenth Amendment in the Federal Court of Connecticut.

Clark Named Judge on Anti-Saloon League O. K.

Washington, Dec. 17 (INS)—Federal Judge William T. Clark of New Jersey was the "personal selection" of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League of America, it was revealed today.

Clark was named by President Coolidge over the opposition of Senator Walter E. Edge (R.), New Jersey, now ambassador to France.

New Jersey Prosecutor Confers With U. S. Officials

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—Philip Forman, New Jersey district attorney, came here today to confer with Justice Department officials on the decision of Federal Judge Clark of New Jersey calling the Eighteenth Amendment invalid.

Judge Runyon Not Bound by Decision

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17 (AP)—Federal Judge William Runyon, hearing his first liquor case since Judge William Clark ruled adversely on the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment, declined today to dismiss a defendant charged with liquor law violation.

"I am not of necessity bound by the decision of Judge Clark," he said. "My conception is that the Eighteenth Amendment has been passed on by the Supreme Court and is binding on all judges of lesser jurisdiction."

Federal Judge Guy L. Fake did not sit today. He said he would withhold legal comment until a liquor case was brought before him.

U. S. Commissioners Joseph Holland and A. L. Friedman were instructed by Judges Runyon and Fake to conduct their liquor hearings in the usual way.

Obscure Farmer Center of Assault on Dry Law

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17 (US)—The decision of Federal Judge Clark, holding the Eighteenth Amendment invalid had its origin in the arrest on March 9 of William Sprague, farmer of Wantage township, Sussex County.

Sprague was arrested by State troopers who found 50 half-barrels of beer in his truck. Counsel made no attempt to deny that the trees obtained the beer but challenged the law itself.

LEGAL LIGHTS CALLED

Frederick M. Pearce, of Metuchen first retained, decided to take a test case and called in such eminent legal minds as Seldon Bacon, New York; Former Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, of New York Supreme Court; Professor Leslie J. Thompson, head of the New York University Law School; and Kenneth Dayton, of New York.

CHALLENGED ADOPTION

On Dec. 9, Sprague was arraigned in Trenton before Judge Clark. The attorneys argued, and in this Judge Clark did not agree, that by the terms of the Tenth Amendment, any amendment giving the government additional direct powers over the people must be ratified by the people themselves in convention.

The lawyers contended that adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment by ratification of the State Legislatures was not adoption at all and that the amendment was not part of the Constitution.

Judge Clark yesterday ruled that the Eighteenth Amendment was unconstitutional because it had been ratified by state legislatures and not by the people.

He said this question had not been passed on by the Supreme Court when it upheld the Eighteenth Amendment in the national prohibition cases in 1920.

Judge Clark explained that the immediate effect of his decision would be in New Jersey where any arrests made for the sale of intoxicants would have to be made under the state enforcement act, pending appeal of his decision.

Judge Clark based his decision on Article Five of the Constitution, and not, as had the defense counsel, on the Tenth Amendment. This article states in part that such amendments shall be valid "when ratified by the legislatures of the several states or by conventions in three-fourths thereof."

The court related that in Massachusetts the first constitution was rejected because it had not been framed by a body chosen for that one purpose. He also pointed out that of eight conditions prior to 1787 which provided for amendments, five required that the process be undertaken in some form of convention.

Said Judge Clark:

"It seems indisputable that local self-government, popular sovereignty and the convention system of drafting and amending constitutions were the 'warp and woof' of the political thought of the whole period prior to the drafting of the Federal Constitution."

QUOTES LINCOLN

Deciding the thought processes of Abraham Lincoln had come to "typify so much the spirit of our institutions," he quoted the Civil War President as follows:

"I will venture to add that the convention seems preferable in that it allows amendments to originate with the people themselves instead of only permitting them to take or reject propositions originated by others, not especially chosen for the purpose, and which might not be precisely such as they would wish to either accept or refuse."

"It is possible to obtain as delegates to a Constitutional convention a higher grade of men than on the average fill the halls of our State Legislatures," Judge Clark said, and quoted Representative Lacy: "When he (a man) is out of office his sole object is to attain it; and when he has attained it his only anxiety is to keep it. In his unprincipled dread of losing his place he will readily go to all lengths."

"Manifestly," the judge observed, "none of these influences can operate upon delegates to a Constitutional convention and he can be disturbed by no hope of political gain or fear of political punishment."

Case for Supreme Court, Gov. Lawson Declares

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 17 (US)—Governor Morgan F. Lawson thinks the decision of Federal Judge Clark is all right, but, in the face of it, he won't advise any of his friends to transport liquor, commenting on the ruling of the Newark Judge which held the Eighteenth Amendment invalid, the governor said today:

"In the crises of the nation there has always been a Moses to save the country and lead us out of the wilderness, and the wet and dry problem has certainly been a wilderness.

"It is something to be decided by the Supreme Court. I have the highest regard for Judge Clark but I would not base my decision as settling the matter and advise my friends to transport liquor."

Enforcement of Dry Law Continues in N. J.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17 (AP)—Prohibition enforcement continued to function in New Jersey today despite the ruling of Federal Judge William Clark that the method of its adoption made the Eighteenth amendment invalid.

The first liquor raid after announcement of the decision was under direction of George S. Hobart, prosecutor of Bergen county, who as a member of the legislature sponsored the Hobart act, the state enforcement measure. Hobart led a squad of police in a raid on the Riverside Boat and Yacht Club, early today. Thirty men and women were arrested.

State Senator Emerson L. Richards, who has a bill in the judiciary committee for the repeal of the Hobart act, said he would press for its enactment.

"It becomes obligatory on the state to repeal the Hobart act in view of Judge Clark's decision," he said.

Prohibition enforcement authorities in New Jersey said they would proceed as if no such decision had been rendered.

Clark Decision Will Hasten Case in R. I.

Providence, Dec. 17 (AP)—In a case now pending in the U. S. District court here, the same grounds have been raised for quashing indictments against two liquor law defendants as were outlined by Federal Judge William Clark in Newark, N. J., yesterday.

The case here is that of Jack Marks and his son-in-law, Tony Maurice, on whose behalf William A. Gunning, Providence lawyer, raised the point that the 18th amendment could not have been adopted by votes of legislatures, but only by votes of constitutional conventions.

United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., said here today that the New Jersey decision probably would hasten the filing of his brief.

Crux of Ruling by Judge Clark Against Dry Law

By the Associated Press.

ARTICLE 5, U. S. Constitution. The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for the purpose of proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths thereof of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress . . .

AMENDMENT X.

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.

Federal Judge William Clark, at Newark, N. J., in holding the eighteenth amendment invalid said:

"If the amendment to be considered is one designed to transfer to the United States powers heretofore exercised by the states, or, if there be any such, to the people, the answer must be in favor of the convention method."

As regards transfer of power, Judge Clark held that the only amendment resembling the eighteenth was the thirteenth, the slavery amendment, but the thirteenth did not grant power to regulate and prohibit certain acts.

YOUNG VISIONS VICTORY OVER JOBLESS ILLS

Unemployment Disease Is Likened to an Earthquake or Other Physical Disaster

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—Owen D. Young today expressed "a confident word of hope that we shall yet master this dreadful disease of unemployment, with all its social and economic ills."

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the executive committee of New York's emergency employment committee, of which he is a member, he said the committee was not dealing with charity, but with the equalization of the impact of a disaster.

"It is like a flood," he said, "an earthquake, or other physical disaster, impossible yet for us to foresee or to prevent, but yet possible with fine co-operative spirit to alleviate its direful results.

"We are studying earthquakes; we are building levees against floods; we are gradually diminishing our fire risks, and so today, as never before, we are studying the laws which govern, and the methods by which we can decrease, these cycles of recurring industrial depressions and the misery they bring.

"The process is slow because no one is in power and no one ought to be. We want no economic dictatorship in America any more than we want political dictatorship."

League Court Is Put Off for a Year

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today voted to defer consideration of the World Court until next December. The vote was ten to nine.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, made the motion to postpone. Republicans, including friend and foe to the court, joined him almost solidly. Democrats voted unitedly against postponement.

Chairman Borah, an opponent of the court, and Senator Gillett, Massachusetts, an advocate, were the only Republicans to vote against deferment.

This move foresjalls any chance of the court issue becoming involved in this short session. It was agreed there was no opportunity to vote on the court at this session, which ends March 4.

PLOT CHARGED IN ARREST AT THAYER TRIAL

Crowther to Carry Case Before British Ambassador; Mrs. Thayer on Stand

Worcester, Dec. 17—Charges of conspiracy flew thick and fast today as the Thayer divorce trial resumed, and action in reprisal for yesterday's arrest of John P. Crowther, English witness, was threatened from several sources.

When the trial got under way, Mrs. Jane H. Thayer took occasion to deny on the witness stand that she knew Miss Anna Daley, the girl who brought about Crowther's arrest on a breach of promise, only to be incarcerated herself later in Worcester State Hospital for observation.

Mrs. Thayer, whose cross libel divorce suit is being heard together with that of Fred B. Thayer, also denied that she patted Miss Daley on the back yesterday in the corridor and said that "everything will be fine now."

TO CHARGE CONSPIRACY

Before the trial resumed today, Jeremiah J. Moynihan, one of counsel for Thayer, announced that he will take up with Dist. Atty. Edwin G. Norman charges of conspiracy against certain parties in the Crowther matter.

Frank G. Hall, another of Thayer's counsel, declared that he will bring suit for false arrest and that conspiracy charges will be contained in the action.

He will also place the entire matter of the conduct of "some of the principals in this case" before the Worcester County Bar Association, Atty. Hall said.

On his own behalf, Thayer said he will "go to the bottom of the conspiracy."

And, to complete the cast, Crowther asserted that he will make formal complaint to the British embassy at Washington.

MRS. THAYER ON STAND

When Mrs. Thayer resumed the stand for still another cross-examination, she denied that she was responsible for keeping Anita Girouard of Pawtucket, R. I., one of the two girls Mrs. Thayer named in her divorce suit, away from the trial.

Mrs. Thayer denied also that she had talked with Miss Girouard in the last 48 hours at the courthouse.

Atty. Hall, coming back into the conspiracy tenor once more, announced then that he will show the existence of efforts made to keep Miss Girouard away from the trial, where she is considered a valuable witness for the husband.—Thayer.

FARM AID BILL CUT IN HALF

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—The House agriculture committee today voted to reduce from $60,000,000 to $30,000,000 the Senate drouth relief loan bill.

The vote to report the bill was 16 to 1 after the Democrats, joined by Representative Carlyle Carter, Republican, Virginia, had been defeated on an effort to retain the Senate figure.

The committee also struck out authorization of loans to farmers for human food.

Rep. Jewell, Democrat, Louisiana, estimated 1,000,000 persons were affected who had no security by which to get loans at a hearing at which Secretary of Agriculture Hyde appeared.

Hyde said the Red Cross was willing to take care of them, adding:

"This is drouth relief. This is not depression relief, Mr. Aswell. We can't get out and help every little farmer in the country.

"You are asking too much of human nature under the Senate proposal. Farmers are to look to the federal government for easy money and it is destructive.

"I personally regard loans by the federal government for food on such thin security a dangerous step toward the sole system in this country."

Democrats on the committee will carry the fight for $60,000,000 and food loans to the floor.

Agreement Near on Muscle Shoals Bill

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—Prediction that House and Senate conferees will agree tomorrow on Muscle Shoals legislation was made today by Chairman McNary of the Senate conference committee. After another day of negotiation, McNary said the committee would provide for government operation of the power plant and lease of the nitrate plant for manufacture of fertilizer and by-products.

DRY LAW INVALIDITY RULING MAY HALT RUM TRIALS IN BOSTON

ENFORCEMENT IN PERIL; LEGAL MINDS SPLIT ON ISSUE

An attack on rum conspiracy cases pending in federal court here was forecast today as a result of the New Jersey federal district court decision that the prohibition amendment is invalid.

Both U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney and Asst. U. S. Atty. Hugo Bagnulo predicted that Judge Clark's New Jersey decision would be used by defense attorneys here to stay judgment in cases involving violation of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Neither would venture an opinion as to court procedure here in such event and Federal Judges Lowell, Norton and Brewster, sitting in Boston, declined to comment until they had studied the Clark decision.

DRYS SEE PERIL

The belief is general that there would be considerable delay in disposition of local cases in the event the Circuit Court of Appeals and United States Supreme Court do not pass upon the New Jersey decision at an early date.

Efforts of local prohibition enforcement officials and of the United States attorney's office will not be affected by the opinion, but appeals from court convictions resulting from their efforts are inevitable as a result of it.

Throughout Massachusetts, Judge Clark's finding was hailed by temperance leaders and anti-prohibitionists. Dry leaders expressed alarm, not so much over the possibility of the opinion being upheld as over the influence it is bound to have on public opinion.

U. S. Dist. Atty. Tarr took the stand that the United States Supreme Court already has decided on the validity of the dry amendment and that the decision is binding until such time as reversed.

Herbert Parker, ex-attorney-general of Massachusetts, declared that it was his opinion that if the matter were taken up again by the Supreme Court, without the merits of past decisions, the court would be so impressed that it might reach the same decision.

Acting Atty.-Gen. Roger Clapp said:

"This decision by a judge of the federal district court, while interesting, academically, is in no sense authoritative. Whether or not it is well considered is not for me to say. Its novelty is its most striking feature."

Other comments follow:

ATTY. HENRY F. HURLBURT: Judge Clark has raised a novel point, apparently well founded. I think the issue should be decided once and for all by the Supreme Court so that there will be no doubt in the people's minds.

LOGICAL, SAYS ALPERT

PROF. Z. P. CHAFEE, JR., of Harvard Law School: After the United States Supreme Court has applied the 18th amendment in 25 or more cases I would be very much surprised if they should sustain Judge Clark. If they followed him it would be very surprising to me. It would be a great relief to President Hoover if they did.

FORMER ASST. DIST. ATTY. GEORGE ALPERT: Federal Judge Clark's opinion on the prohibition question is logical. It's a very able presentation of facts based on law interpretation. He is one of the ablest federal district court jurists in the country. I do not know whether the United States Supreme Court will uphold his opinion. A great mass of water has gone over the falls, millions of dollars have been paid in fines and violators of the law have served sentences in jails, all of which shows that the opinion of Judge Clark is rather late.

ATTY. JOHN J. MANSFIELD: I applaud the courage of Mr. Justice Clarke. I feel there can be no harm done in having a full hearing of all the issues involved and in having the case decided in such a way as to leave no question open.

ALEXANDER LINCOLN, director of the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment: In national prohibition cases the United States Supreme Court held that the Eighteenth Amendment was valid. Whether they will reverse their decision on account of the consideration advanced by Judge Clark, it seems to me, must be a matter of considerable consequence.

'COURT 'DRY MINDED"

ATTY. CHARLES H. SAVAGE: There is food for thought in what Judge Clark says. He is an able jurist and his opinion undoubtedly will have great weight in bringing to a focus an issue that has been discussed for 12 years or more. Personally, I feel that Judge Clark knows what he is talking about. Whether his opinion will be sustained by the United States Supreme Court is problematical.

ATTY. JOSEPH FINNEGAN: Judge Clark has raised rather a deep question, but a very reasonable one, in my opinion. It seems that the Supreme Court, which, we a body, is prohibition-minded, has gone so far as possible in upholding the validity of the prohibition amendment. In the case of Rhode Island vs. Palmer, in which the latter as attorney-general for the state, questioned the legality of the Eighteenth Amendment, the Supreme Court upheld the findings of the lower courts without giving a reason for any decision. Judge Clark's decision, which brings the issue before the people once again, should be the ante-climax.

PROF. JOSEPH H. BEALE, Harvard Law School: The United States Supreme Court has already passed upon the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment. There is nothing new in Judge Clark's decision. His ruling is about as important as if the chief justice of the municipal court had made it.

DEAN DOUBTFUL

GLEASON L. ARCHER, dean of Suffolk Law School: I am sure that all law-abiding citizens will agree that if the Eighteenth Amendment is invalid because of the method of its adoption the sooner we know it the better. But, off-hand, it seems to me very unlikely that the Supreme Court will agree with the reasoning of the youthful judge, if it is as announced in the newspapers. It is significant that every amendment adopted during the past century and a quarter has been ratified by the legislatures of the states and never by the alternative convention method. Of course, the Eighteenth Amendment differs somewhat from others in its highly controversial character. The legislatures of every state in the Union for a century have been wrestling with legislation on the same topic. The legislatures that ratified the Eighteenth Amendment were elected by the people with the knowledge that this question was coming before them for ratification. We are living under a representative form of government. I cannot see why he should reverse the principle in this case and say that the representatives of the people were not qualified to act in their behalf, but require the people to elect a different set of men to hold a convention expressly for this one topic.

ACTING GOVERNOR YOUNGMAN: No one can help being extremely interested in contemplation of the social and political effects which would result if the decision should be confirmed by the court of last resort, but it is useless to make a guess as to the outcome. We must wait and see what the United States Supreme Court does. The amendment was ratified in Massachusetts by the legislature, not by convention. The House, on March 20, 1918 voted, 145 to 91, for ratification and the Senate concurred on April 2 by 27 to 12.

ISSUE NEVER DECIDED

WILLIAM E. DORMAN, counsel to the State Senate: I haven't read the opinion, but I will say this: The Eighteenth Amendment, like all the 19 amendments, has been ratified by the State Legislatures as determined by Congress under its right to designate the method of ratification by Article 5 of the Constitution. Constitutional questions, according to so great a chief justice as Roger B. Taney, are never settled. The Supreme Court has not hesitated to reverse itself when convinced of its error, as it did in the legal tender cases. It is significant that the national prohibition cases were decided by the United States Supreme Court without opinion.

JUDGE WILLIAM H. McDONNELL of Charlestown court: The court is in reality an interpretation of the will of a majority of the people of the country. As to what the United States Supreme Court will do in the matter, I cannot say. The opinion is logical in every essential way in its interpretation of the law. Judge Clark is a jurist of standing in the country and his opinion will have great weight in bringing forcibly to the minds of the country the injustice of the prohibition law.

MAY SETTLE ISSUE

CORP. COUNSEL SAMUEL SHERMAN: A superficial examination of the decision indicates there is considerable merit to Judge Clark's contention that the ratification must be by convention rather than by the Legislature. The most encouraging result of the decision will be that it will at last bring before the United States Supreme Court this much-discussed question for final determination. It would be futile for anyone at this stage of proceedings to say whether Judge Clark was right or wrong. I do hope, however, for the well-being of the country, that the Supreme Court will sustain Judge Clark and thereby remove the question of prohibition that has resulted so disastrously. Elimination of the saloon in the event the Supreme Court sustains Judge Clark can be taken care of by appropriate legislation in the states.

U. S. COMMISSIONER EDWIN C. JENNEY: The ruling has no effect in this State. No doubt a precedent may be established here by some lawyer raising the point as referred to by the New Jersey justice. It is likely to come before some of the judges in the Federal district court, but as to what will happen I cannot say. No such point has been raised yet in any case before me.

FORMER ASST. U. S. ATTY. ESSEX ABBOTT: I'm afraid there's nothing to it. I wish there might be.

FORMER U. S. ATTY. DANIEL T. SHEA: The ruling is revolutionary. It seems to me to be very logical.

ASST. U. S. ATTY. HUGO BAGULO: No doubt attorneys will attempt to use it as precedent in United States court. I have no idea what the result may be.

6 TRUNK LINES SOUGHT IN N. E.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 17 (AP)—The bringing of six trunk lines to the service of New England seaports and industrial centers, instead of the one all-inclusive railway system recommended for this territory in 1923 by the Storrow report, is urged in a report issued today by the Port Development committee of the Providence Chamber of Commerce.

The committee recommends the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate System (the Van Sweringen Lines), the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National be induced to extend their services to New England territory.

This recommendation is made on the premise developments since the Storrow report was issued have changed the conception of New England as a terminal yard connecting at the Hudson river with the chief trunk lines of the East and providing New England shippers with competitive service.

House 'Haunted' Since Civil War Destroyed by Fire

New Ashford, Dec. 17 (INS)—This little Berkshire hills town, known throughout the country for being the first to complete its tabulation in elections, today was without its legendary "haunted house."

The old Mallory homestead, built in 1794, in which the town's only murder took place, just before the Civil War, was destroyed by fire late yesterday. A nearby barn and livestock was saved by a bucket brigade.

Daniel Phelps, a bachelor, who had braved the legends of "haunts and spooks" for five years by living alone in the old farmhouse, was absent. It is believed an overheated stove pipe was responsible.

Shortly after a member of the Mallory family was murdered in the house, the townsfolk began to look at it as "haunted." The Mallorys moved out and for a long time it was untenanted.

Its solitary position, on the top of a hill a half mile from any neighbors and a mile from the State highway, lent added color to the legend.

House of Representatives wants President Hoover to allocate the relief money.

Senators want to distribute the dough themselves. They've had more experience.

They can toss it around. Washington threw a dollar across the Potomac. That's retail merchandising compared with heaving a billion across the Atlantic.

It's a Republican family fight. If they want a distributor who knows all the unemployed why don't they call in a Democrat?

Cheered at First Public Appearance Since Personally "Crushing" Revolt

Madrid, Dec. 17—For the first time since revolution put Spain under martial law, King Alfonso came out of his palace today and drove in an open carriage to the Church of San Francisco for ceremonies commemorating the achievements of the South American patriot, Bolivar.

He was accompanied by only a small guard. Great crowds cheered him.

The King himself directed the operations which resulted in what the government terms a crushing defeat of the revolutionary movement of the past week.

Last Monday he insisted on personally leading the government troops into action against the insurgent Maj. Ramon Franco at Cuatro Vientos airdrome, but was restrained.

PREMIER COLLAPSES

Gen. Damaso Berenguer, the premier, has collapsed under the strain. The doctors said he had a severe case of tonsilitis.

The premier ordered that Anita Torrero, a telephone operator at Yerbe, be sent a gold bracelet in recognition of her valor in "maintaining her post against the enemy insurrectos, continuing at her switchboard with which she kept in communication with the government" during the battle which ended the Jaca uprising last Saturday.

Niceto Alcala Zamora, whom the revolutionists proclaimed "President of the Republic," made a statement in prison, saying Republican Socialist and labor leaders had been planning for months to establish a Republic.

The reason for failure appeared to have been internal disagreements in the revolutionary organization, which wanted a Communist government.

Four others were forced by bad weather to put into a bay on the Island of Mavorca, in the Balearic Islands.

Air Minister Balbo, chief of the flight, was one of the planes that anchored in the Balearic Islands. They will join the others at Cartagena tomorrow. Fifty-four men comprise the personnel of the flight.

From Cartagena they plan to fly on down the Mediterranean to West African coast to a point near Dakar, Senegal, then take off on a 1900-mile flight across the Atlantic to Natal, Brazil, and continue from Natal to Rio De Janeiro. It is planned eventually to sell the planes to the Brazilian government and to return home by ship.

NEW HOPE HELD FOR POINCARE

Paris, Dec. 17 (AP)—Friends of Raymond Poincare, France's most illustrious statesman, found hope today in the official medical bulletin from the sick man's bedside.

"The condition of the former President, who last Saturday suffered a vascular spasm, today shows an improvement which justifies hope for the future," the bulletin said.

A later bulletin, at noon, read:

Patrolman Accused by Ex-Stool Pigeon

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—"Chile" Acuna, former vice squad stool pigeon, took the witness stand today at trials of four he accused of third degree methods. He was in detail in describing the arrest of Winifred Grayson and Margery Wharton in March, 1929. Both young women had testified they were "framed." Acuna said police who worked on this case with him included the four defendant policemen.

EDISON LISTS BENEFITS OF PROHIBITION

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17 (INS)—Answers of Thomas A. Edison to six questions on prohibition, propounded by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey today were furnished International News Service by James K. Shields, superintendent of the organization.

The questions and answers are as follows:

Question 1—Do you approve of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and if so, why?

Answer—Yes, it is a necessary aid to permit practical enforcement of prohibition all over the country.

Question 2—Has it helped the industrial and economic side of America at home and strengthened the industrial standing of our nation abroad?

Answer—Yes, and to a greater extent than realized.

CHILDREN BETTER OFF

Question 3—In your judgment, are children better fed, clothed and educated since the coming of national prohibition than they were before?

Answer—In my judgment I would say decidedly yes. In support of this opinion and in this connection let me cite my experience as a manufacturer, which is similar to that of other manufacturers. On pay day before prohibition, numerous of pinched women, shabbily dressed, some with faded shawls around their heads, appeared at our factory at West Orange. They were waiting to get some of their husband's money before he got to a saloon.

Within a year after the amendment, not a single woman appeared. Surely we Americans do not want a return to that state of affairs. Undoubtedly the condition of the mother indicates the condition of the children, although they are perhaps a little better off than she, because she will do anything to the giving up of her life to protect them.

KEEP 18th AMENDMENT

Question 4—What attitude should the womanhood of America hold towards prohibition and why?

Answer—Woman is the custodian of the home and children. She certainly, if a normal woman, does not desire the introduction of narcotics into her home, which in many cases changes a human man into a brute.

Question 5—Are the boys and girls of America more likely to develop a higher degree of physical and mental fitness and become better and more useful citizens under national prohibition of the liquor traffic or under the old license system of any form of state or government control?

Answer—Yes, they certainly cannot develop on alcohol and other narcotics.

Question 6—Should the 18th Amendment be retained as a blessing to our American home today and to those of future generations?

Answer—Yes. Enforcement is getting more practical day by day. We now attack the large manufacturer right in our midst instead of men with flasks and home brew.

Divorce Problem Lies In Marriage Contract, Faith Baldwin Declares

Here is the second interview presented by the Boston Evening American on the problem of divorce, under so much discussion at present. In it are given the views of Faith Baldwin, author of the well-known novel, "Alimony."

Daily the Boston Evening American will publish the views on the subject as given by outstanding advocates and opponents of liberal divorce.

The interview as expressed to a Boston Evening American reporter:

Dear Lady, you are hereby sentenced to spend the rest of your life with a selfish, thoughtless, ungracious, boorish lout. You happened to marry him when you were young and so was he. He hadn't had time to develop the characteristics by which you know him best. You hadn't developed yourself. You have acquired discernment, finesse, delicacy.

LIBERAL—Faith Baldwin, author of "Alimony," who advocates more liberal divorce laws in interview for Boston Evening American.

It's the Law

It's too bad, but there you are. Stay there.

Imagine being told that if you are a woman! Or make it the other way around, if you wish. Men are up against it just as hard.

It's the law.

Drat such a law! Is that going to make the man or the woman spend the rest of their lives in misery? Not if they are worth worrying about at all.

But the children — the poor little children. Think of them if you part.

Well, if you would think about them a little you would probably part years before you finally do. That is, you would, if you were any good at all.

Poor little children — that's right. They are poor little children when they have to live in a house occupied by a male and a female who have no business to be within thousands of miles of each other. And who are not any closer than that mentally.

Of course, well bred men and women don't throw dishes at each other. They are not so refined. They toss thoughts that kill back and forth over the heads and across the faces of those poor little children.

And because they are not spoken thoughts, do you imagine for one minute the children don't hear them? Ridiculous! They hear everything and see everything that you have in your mind.

Sensed by Children

Do you suppose a child can't sense the tension that exists in a home torn by distrust, deceit, jealousy, incompatibility — any one of the thousand things that obtrude themselves between mismated men and women?

My friend Gilbert K. Chesterton, with whom I debated, says:

All right. But we are not all Catholics. And if we were, we are not all good.

Let us hurry and acquire just a bit of common sense about this question of divorce. Let us put a stop to all the abuses that are cloaked by a bad law. Give us a discerning, understanding divorce law that contemplates the fact that two persons can be far unhappier who are mismated mentally than for any other cause.

Let us go back of the question of divorce. What about marriage? Isn't the trouble right there? Hasn't the Church and maybe the State read into the simple contract of marriage conditions, tenets and interpretations which unduly influence the persons making such a contract?

Would it not be possible to revise the contract of marriage so that it becomes an agreement in which two persons may enter and leave with dignity?

Broaden the divorce law until it encompasses the needs for which it is invoked. Examine into that original contract a little more closely. I am not at all sure but what the original agreement might easily be revised to make all divorce laws obsolete.

I would like to see a committee of intelligent men and women undertake the revision of that marriage contract. That will solve, I think, the divorce question.

See tomorrow's Boston Evening American for the next interview in this unusual series. It presents the views of the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Broadway Temple Methodist Episcopal Church.

Readers of the Boston Evening American are urged to express their opinions on this question of divorce. Letters should be addressed to the Discussion Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass. The most interesting letters will be published in the Boston Evening American.

HOLLYWOOD INN FUND BENEFIT THURSDAY

One more chance to see the stars of the best stage presentations in Boston is offered by the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American at a special Theatrical Night performance at Hollywood Inn, tomorrow night.

If you attended the record-breaking midnight show at Keith-Boston Theater, you realize what an entertainment bargain is in store at the next great event in aid of the needy families of Greater Boston.

Here's the story briefly:

QUEENIE SMITH ON BILL

The dinner itself will be priced as usual, $1.50 per plate. The management has arranged for the appearance of Queenie Smith, star of "The Street Singer," at the Shubert Theater; Nick Long, Jr., Harry K. Morton, Marion Green and others of the same production.

Of course the regular floor show at Hollywood Inn will be on the bill. Fess Williams and his Royal Flush orchestra.

Georgia Kelly, one of the big hits of the Barker Fund show, and Page and Slappy, dancing demons of the colored revue who took the midnight audience by storm, are on the next great program.

ARTHUR BROWN TO SING

And the half-dozen show girls round out the greatest floor show that ever played in a Boston night club. The program doesn't stop there, however.

Arthur Brown is going to sing again, "Mon Rivere" again. And Mickey Alpert is going to repeat his performance. The popular Cocoanut Grove director has postponed his Thursday theatrical night at the Grove to Friday to aid the Hollywood Inn program.

Hum and Strum, radio stars of national fame, will appear again in person. And that's an act in itself which should draw a record crowd.

The show has been arranged at short notice. Consequently reservations will be in demand throughout today. Tommy Mayes will be on duty at Hollywood Inn all day to accept telephoned reservations. He's the director of the floor show and he has donated his services and those of his artists to the Basket Fund. Call him today for seats. It's going to be a full house and it's only a short walk downtown to the corner of Tremont and Stuart sts., where you'll see the sign, "Hollywood Inn." Seats are limited. GET BUSY.

Army to Test New Radio Guide for Lost Planes

New York, Dec. 17—An Invention that will guide the lost flier home on ordinary radio broadcast waves will be demonstrated before the army air corps in Washington, D. C., next week.

Geoffrey G. Kruesi of Los Angeles, research engineer for Western Air Express, arrived here yesterday on his way to Washington and gave his invention a tryout. Previous to the official tests, he will go to Asheville, N. C., to confer with Herbert Hoover, Jr., who developed the device.

It consists of a loop antennas mounted on the fuselage of the plane and a reading dial on the instrument board. When the antennae catches a broadcast from any point, the needle on the dial points to the station of that station.

The mechanism recently has undergone a successful two-months test on the 32-passenger Fokkers operating between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

THE LAST MILE -:- -:- By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 23

"CARE FOR you? Why? You're no different from any of the others I can pick up on the street with a wink or a word."

Ethel turned and glared at him. This made her furious.

"Is that so? Where do you get off talking like that?"

"And I guess Harve Mellon was telling the truth when he said he saw you at the lake with Nissinger."

Hurt Her Pride

"What of it?"

"Nothing. Say, I was over at sand inlet one night—" he caught himself before saying that he was with some girl he had picked up. I wasn't sleepy, and took a walk. I'll bet it was you and Nissinger I saw in swimming in the moonlight!"

She didn't answer him.

"Was it?"

"It's none of your business."

He grinned derisively at her.

"I suppose you'll go to church tomorrow and sing hymns and pray and look like a little saint?"

Again his sneer drove her frantic. And she was hurt in her pride now, that he didn't seem to care for her at all.

"Oh, shut up! You give me a pain—you are an awful wet smack—the biggest fool I ever saw —for Pete's sake take me home— I don't want to ever see you again."

"I wouldn't walk across the street to see you, get that straight."

Ethel knew plenty of profanity and she used it. At the same time she struck him a stinging slap across his mouth. Then she tore his ring from her finger and threw it away from her as far as she could. It was too much for Dick—her complete contempt for him and his love. He thrust her harshly away from him.

The push was harder than he thought. It sent her reeling backwards. Her heel struck a stone and she crashed down backwards, her head striking a pile of rocks at the edge of the little stream.

Dick stared at her.

"Get up," he said, roughly, "I didn't mean to shove you so hard. Get up—you can't bluff me now."

She didn't move. He went over to her and tried to lift her. Her body was limp.

He knelt over her and became panicky as she showed no signs of recovery.

Slowly he came to the horrible realization that Ethel Simmons was past recovery.

She was dead!

"She can't be dead! She can't be dead! She can't be dead!"

Over and over and over, Dick Walters repeated this, as he worked so futilely to restore some signs of life in the limp body.

"My God, Sid, open your eyes — it was an accident — I just shoved you away when you slapped me," he said.

Then he would repeat again and again, "She can't be dead!"

But Dick Walters knew that she was dead. The knowledge came to him slowly, through his frantic efforts to restore her to consciousness and through his stubborn belief that the fall could not have killed her.

When he came to the full realization that Ethel was dead his panic was almost beyond belief.

He ran to his car, he ran back to pick up the hamper, he ran over to the body with some wild idea of aiding it.

Finally he paced back and forth and tried to think. It was terrible —almost too terrible for belief, yet it was true. But it was an accident — he hadn't really killed her —she had fallen.

It didn't occur to him to put her in his car and drive back to the city to a hospital.

An Accident

After a while he managed to think somewhat more coherently through his panic. He got into his car and drove down to the lower end of River-End Park where there was a pavilion and some State police.

He found an officer outside the pavilion.

"My girl friend fell on the rocks, she's unconscious, I got to get a doctor," Dick said.

"Where?"

"Up at the upper end by the big elm, where the brook crosses under the drive and into the river —where can I get a doctor?"

He stepped to the open window of the little office used by the officers patrolling the park.

"Call a doctor—girl hurt up at the culvert," he ordered and turned to Dick, "Come on, show me."

"How did it happen?" the officer asked as he got into Dick's car.

"It was an accident—just an accident."

"But how did she fall hard enough to knock herself out?"

"Oh, she stepped on a loose rock—went over backwards before I could grab her—hit her head on some rocks."

"Did you put water on her? Is she out on the head?"

"Yes, I put water on her—yes, hey head is out."

"She's dead!" the officer said a moment after he got out of the car and examined her.

"She can't be!" Dick cried.

"She's dead—she—"

The officer didn't say any more, but stopped in the middle of his sentence. He had noticed the torn dress. It looked suspicious.

"My God, don't do that, she'll suffocate. She isn't dead—it's just where her head hit the rocks that knocked her out when she tripped and fell," Dick cried.

"The girl is dead—you knew she was dead when you came and got me!"

He stared hard at Dick.

"I didn't believe she was dead. If that doctor would only come. How far away was he?"

"Doctor can't do any good. Come down here with me."

"What for?"

"I'll wait here."

"You'll come with me."

"What's the idea, officer? You don't think I'd run away, do you? It was only an accident—"

"Come on. I'd advise you not to talk, young man."

Can't Save Her

Dick walked down to the post. The officer telephoned. He said: "Did you get the doctor? Get Capt. Hawkins—tell him the girl is dead —serious—get me?"

He listened and then hung up.

Dick wondered what he meant by saying "serious." It could not be more serious—it was tragedy—the officer was stupid, he thought. It did not occur to him that the officer's use of the word "serious" meant that he suspected crime.

They went back and sat on the running board of the car. Dick didn't want to look at the body and at the same time he couldn't keep from staring at it. If only she would move—if only she would show signs of life. The shock would kill her mother.

"O God, why are they so slow!" Dick finally said.

"Was was she?" the officer finally asked.

Dick told him.

"And you?"

Dick told him that, also.

"Where can we reach her father?"

"She hasn't any. She lived with her mother and her aunt. Her mother is an invalid. This will likely kill her—the shock."

"I think quite likely it will."

"How near were you to her when she fell?" the officer asked him suddenly.

"Why, close—10 feet away, perhaps."

"Ten feet isn't close."

"It wasn't near enough for me to reach out and save her when she slipped on a rock and went over backwards."

The officer eyed him for a while.

"Get it all thought out, haven't you?"

"What do you mean?"

The officer stared at him without making any reply. Dick was getting nervous again.

"What do you mean, I got it all thought out? She fell and hit her head—I couldn't save her. I worked over her and then I drove down and told you."

"Perhaps."

"Look here—you better be careful what you say—it's pretty serious, talking like that—you'd think I pushed her over on the rocks myself—I was 10 feet away from her when she fell, I tell you."

"It's pretty serious, all right—here they come."

They got up as a car appeared and came to a stop. Captain Hawkins of the park police, a branch of the state police, got out. A sergeant of police of the city force followed. Then two men in citizen's dress. One was the doctor first telephoned for. The other was a medical examiner.

The officer who had waited with Dick, whose name was Robbins, removed his coat from the body and put it on. The two doctors started to examine the body. Officer Robbins went to Captain Hawkins and Sergeant Donger and talked in a low tone.

Not a Chance

He went to the doctors.

"Isn't there a chance? Isn't she just stunned?" he asked.

"Not a chance," the medical examiner answered.

Robbins was saying, "something dead wrong here, chief. See how her dress is half torn off her? It looks fishy to me, his story of her stepping on a round stone and falling backwards. That wouldn't tear her dress down like that."

"Keep with him, keep him some distance away," Hawkins ordered Officer Robbins did so.

"This is terrible," Dick cried. "I can't believe it. They ought to be able to save her—it's concussion of the brain or something—why don't they apply restoratives or rush her to a hospital?"

"Why didn't you put her in your car and rush her to a hospital?" Robbins asked.

"I didn't think of it—I thought she'd regain consciousness any minute."

Sergt. Unger came up and made a note of Ethel's name and address. He started to walk away, but turned suddenly to Dick.

"How did her dress get torn?" he asked, sharply.

"That was an accident — we were fooling. Oh, it must have been an hour before she fell. We were just fooling and she stumbled and I grabbed for her to save her—her dress was thin and it tore like paper."

"Another accident? She fell quite a lot, didn't she?"

He went back to the doctors.

"I think he killed her," he said to the examiner.

"She could have killed herself, falling backwards on rocks like that," Doctor Warner said.

"Probably, but she couldn't have torn her dress half off of her, cross the bosom falling backwards."

"I thought perhaps he ripped it open to listen for her heartbeats," the doctor said.

"He was too dumb to give that as an excuse, he said they were fooling. The car's on the way to take the body into town. Let me have your report as soon as possible."

Sergeant Unger said, giving Medical Examiner Evans a meaning glance. He went back to Dick and Officer Robbins.

"We'll take your car back to town," he said to Dick.

"All right—what—when—"

"That's arranged," Unger said gruffly.

SOVIET TO RULE ALL LABOR

Moscow, Dec. 17 (AP)—Strict control of labor within the U. S. S. R. was announced by the central executive committee of the union in a decree today.

There will be no changing of jobs by workers, technicians and others except with the formal permission of the authorities. Salaries and wages for each particular job will be the same throughout the nation, thereby eliminating all competition for labor.

The decree says:

"Malicious disorganizers who quit work will not be given work for a period of six months.

"Persons who, when offered a job, refuse it, will be stricken off the list for six months."

A worker undergoing six months' discipline will have none of the privileges of the employed worker to purchase food, clothing, or other necessities.

BANDIT HUNT IN R. I. WOODS

Warwick, R. I., Dec. 17—Three armed bandits, possibly suffering from injuries and exposure, were hunted in the woods six miles below Warwick early today following the holdup of a lunch diner in Apponaug.

Half an hour after the holdup took place in the Algonquin diner, the car used by the bandits and carrying Connecticut number plates, was found wrecked against a tree.

Andrew Egan of 77 Maple ave., Thornton, was alone in the Algonquin diner when two of the bandits, both armed, came in. They took $50 from the cash register and $7 from Egan. The third man stayed in the auto.

Then the trio drove away rapidly in the direction of Connecticut. From the appearance of the wrecked car it was evident that it had been traveling at terrific speed.

The place where the car was found is wooded heavily on both sides of the road, and a search for the bandit trio was begun in these woods.

Little Mother Pleads That 6 Get Taste of Turkey

gaze at the remains of a badly damaged 15-pound Vermont turkey, WILL ANY ONE OF THOSE LINES COME BACK TO HAUNT YOU?

Or will you think of them with an inner glow of satisfaction and say to yourself:

"Well, I helped those youngsters to their first portion of turkey; I'll bet they enjoyed it more than I did!"

Hundreds of children who never tasted turkey on Thanksgiving, Christmas, or any other day for that matter, are going to have it THIS YEAR if YOU dig down and fork up.

WHY BE HARD-BOILED?

Hundreds of children who haven't had a real nourishing meal in a long time are going to have one Christmas if YOU are half as good a fellow as you represent yourself to be.

And if YOU don't contribute to Basket Fund you can pat your well-filled tummy in smug satisfaction after your Christmas meal and think:

"Well, I didn't give anything. Why in hell should they have turkey if they can't afford to buy it!"

Honestly, you'd have to be awfully hard-boiled to do that.

If you feel that way—if you feel a bit that way, now—skim through these lines, taken at random from a few letters of appeal to the Basket Fund Editor:

"We live in a barn . . .

HEART RACKING PLEAS

Do you think: "So do we?"

"I am so discouraged I don't care what happens . . ."

Do you think: "Neither do I?"

"We have 11 children . . ."

Do you think: "They aren't mine, why should I worry?"

Do you think: "Go ahead and get it?"

Honestly, there have been times, reading those letters, when the Basket Fund Editor has bitten his lower lip, looked at the total of contributions as compared with the pitiful appeals and said:

"God, if I had a million dollars!"

No blasphemy in that; just a simple prayer.

The Basket Fund needs money and it needs money quickly. It needs some kind of contribution from YOU and it needs it NOW. It needs pennies and nickels and dimes and quarters and dollars. WILL YOU?

BUYING MORE BUT SPENDING LESS

Even when money is scarce and everybody is trying to stretch incomes as far as possible A&P stores are crowdedjustlikethis.

More people are buying food in A&P stores today than ever before. Old customers are paying less for what they buy than they paid last year. And new customers are getting more for what they pay.

The ranks of A&P customers go right on growing in bad times as well as in good, because the public likes to get full value for its money.

WATSON HOPES CONGRESS WILL GET HOLIDAY

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—Senator Watson, after a call on President Hoover today, said the chief executive was courageously dealing with "the greatest problems ever faced by a President in peace time."

The Republican floor leader said the President "probably is doing a little better job than we are doing up on the hill."

Senator Watson said there was a private telephone between his office and the President's office and that not a day had passed recently when he and the President had not been in conference.

He expressed the opinion Congress should stay in session until unemployment relief legislation was enacted, even though they had to work through the holidays.

"The country," he said, "would condemn us, and justly, if we adjourned before passing these bills.

"I have a resolution in my pocket calling for adjournment on Saturday, but it looks like we cannot get away at that time. We may be able to leave on Tuesday."

The Senate, Watson said, never goes directly at a problem, but generally zigzags.

"We are zigzagging now," he added, "but, as always, we will get there eventually."

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a family supply. So effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the stubborn phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

ADOLPHE MENJOU WILL START WORK ON 'THE GREAT LOVER' SOON

OLD STAGE HIT FOR STAR

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—Adolphe Menjou is in fine spirits over the adaptation of "The Great Lover" written for him by Gene Markey. The play, you will remember, was staged about 15 years ago with Lee Dietrichstein in the role. What a performance Dietrichstein gave as the opera singer who was besieged by the fair sex and who had the same thing to say to all of them.

Adolphe, who is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has just finished the French version of "Let Us Be Gay" and is hying himself to the country for a few days prior to leaving for New York on a holiday. The holiday will be brief for M. G. M. wants to get busy on "The Great Lover," which will be one of their specials for the coming year.

Louella O. Parsons

This will be the second Dietrichstein play starring Mr. Menjou. He did "The Concert" for Paramount under the title of "Fashions In Love." It it was one of the best pictures he ever made.

UNLESS SOMETHING entirely unexpected happens Dolores Costello will not play "Trilby" opposite John Barrymore. The Dolores has decided that domesticity and motherhood are fine, but she wants to continue her career as well. So she is returning to Warners to make additional pictures, but neither she nor her husband feel it is a good idea for her to play opposite him. Of course there may be a change of mind, I can't say as to that. But today, at least, all plans are for Lina Costello to find another vehicle. Speaking of "Trilby," David Manners will play the role of Little Billie, and Archie Mayo will direct.

PRETTY YOUNG Diane Ellis celebrated on her 21st birthday. Her grandmother received only meager details announcing an operation which was performed in faraway India. All day long sympathizing friends called to express sympathy to the grandmother who had raised her. Miss Ellis' career in the movies was brief. The only bad one chance she had was in "Laughter," Harry D'Arrast's success.

THINGS ARE breaking pretty for Hoot Gibson, to put it bluntly. Hoot, as you recently told you, signed a contract to make five pictures and now he is all signed up to make a vaudeville tour for Radio Pictures. Hoot and his pretty wife, Sally Eilers, leave Saturday for New York where Hoot opens in a special act. I suppose it's a cowboy number. After a tour of vaudeville Hoot returns to Hollywood to open his rodeo and to complete his motion picture contract. Sally plans to remain with Hoot for a month or more coming back here however, to make a picture later, the name of which Sally was loathe to tell. She says she is the superstitious kind who is afraid to mention any picture until the contract is all signed, sealed and delivered.

POOR BUDDY ROGERS, sick in the hospital will have to wait some weeks before he is able to return to the movies. Buddy was all set to play "It Pays to Advertise" which was purchased with him in mind by the Paramount Company. But now it has been postponed and it gives Skeets Gallagher some free time. And since Skeets is one of the many who took tests for Hildy Johnson in "Front Page" which knows. Robert Ames is another Lewis Milestone had in mind and Spencer Tracy a third. Seems as if most actors would be willing to give anything to play that part.

ONE OF THE prettiest young matrons in Hollywood is Mrs. Jack Mulhall. She is slender, dark-haired and the type that people turn to look at at parties and on the street. Evelyn has wanted to go on the screen for a long time but her husband who is one of the most popular of the young juvenile actors has discouraged it. But she has finally won him over and now Evelyn is all ready and set to go. She has put herself into the hands of an agent and she says as soon as she gets on the lot going to make a picture.

MADGE MAIZIE ALICE RUTH

ATTRACTIVE MEMBERS of the "Gray Family," appearing this week at the Scollay Sq. Theater and who present a special program of harmony songs during the graduation exercises of the Homemakers' Class of the Martha Lee cooking school, on the fifth floor of the Boston Evening American building, this afternoon at 2:30. The program is to be broadcast over WLEX.

GALA BILL AT GRADUATION

A specially arranged radio program, including star acts from the Publix Scollay Square Theater, is broadcast this afternoon at 2:30 via station WLEX, in conjunction with the graduation exercises of the home makers' class of the Martha Lee cooking school of the Boston Evening American.

Among the array of stage talent will be the "most versatile family in vaudeville," the Gray Family, and they have put together a special program of harmony songs and specialties for this broadcast.

Bennie Fairbanks, popular master of ceremonies of the Scollay, will be on hand with his fine voice, and he promises some excellent saxophone selections.

No radio program can be called complete without a prima donna, and this broadcast has Doris Day of Watts and Day to fill the bill, and Miss Day will also furnish some piano selections played in her own inimitable manner. Movie theater-goers may remember Miss Day as having sung the featured role in "Aida" at the Boston Opera House last season.

SOPRANO WILL SING TONIGHT

The performance of "Street Scene" at the Majestic tomorrow night will be given as a benefit, sponsored by the New England Sled Dog Club. In addition to the regular performance a stage appearance will be made of the "huskies" that were with Admiral Byrd on the South Pole expedition, including Captain Vaughan's famous lead dog, Dinny. Mr. Vaughan, of Hamilton, was one of the dog sled drivers with Byrd.

There will also be shown moving pictures of sled dog races which have been held in New England. Moseley Taylor, president of the club, will emcee of all events in New England dogdom for many years, has master of ceremonies. He will introduce Vaughan, Dinny, and Barbara Willison, the leading lady of "Street Scene," who will also speak to the audience in person to tell of her interest in dogs in general and the South Pole "huskies" in particular.

KIPNIS GIVES CONCERT

Alexander Kipnis, Russian basso whose frequent appearances with the Chicago Civic Opera Company have made him a well-known figure here, gave his first Boston song-recital at Symphony Hall last evening under the auspices of the South End Music School. A warmly appreciative audience found him as superb an artist on the concert stage as he is in the field of opera.

During the entire concert, Mr. Kipnis gave evidence of his operatic training. In the first place, his program—ranging from an aria from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," through lieder by Schumann, Brahms and Hugo Wolf, to a scene from Moussorgsky's "Boris Godnoff"—was chosen with a keen sense of dramatic values.

And Mr. Kipnis made the most of his opportunities. He "threw himself," as the saying goes, into each song with kindling spirit and admirable intelligence. He made of each song a glowing, ecstatic flame.

In the infrequent cases when the music itself lacked intensity (as in the Mozart aria, for instance) he seemed to endow it with that fiery quality by means of vivid facial expressions and extraordinary telling use of his rich, deep voice.

It was as an interpreter of Hugo Wolf, without doubt, that Mr. Kipnis shone especially brightly last night. In the music of this restless genius, Kipnis submerged his own rare individuality. His feeling for Wolf's "Unavowed Love," especially, was so completely "right" than an enchanted audience demanded a repitition of the lovely song.

A group of Russian folk songs, unfamiliar for the most part, were finely sung and well received.

His performance of the death scene from "Boris" made one sincerely hope that the Chicago Opera will some day see fit to let us hear the complete opera with Mr. Kipnis in the title role.

Paderewski

Paderewski will include a second appearance in Boston in his tour in America, playing in Symphony Hall on Saturday afternoon, December 27. The pianist's program will include: Bach's Prelude and Fugue in G minor, arranged by Liszt; Beethoven's Sonata in F minor; Schumann's Carnaval; the a group of Chopin—Berceuse in G major, Nocturne in C sharp minor, Two Mazurkas, Two Etudes, Polonaise in E-flat minor, Valse Brillante, and Scherzo in B-flat minor.

THEATER LEADERS HEAR AIDE TO WILL HAYS

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

A STRAIGHT-FROM-THE-SHOULDER talk on business and prosperity, by C. C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the Will Hays organization, and a heart-to-heart policy speech by Gen. A. F. Foote, Massachusetts commissioner of public safety, featured the third get-together luncheon of the Allied Theaters, at the Hotel Bradford. The largo attendance proved the wisdom of President George Giles and Executive Secretary James J. McGuinness in fostering these meetings.

• • •

ALL ANGLES of the motion picture industry were represented. Among the speakers were Thomas Meehan of Worcester, a wit of the first rank, and R. J. Hoffman of New Haven, Conn. representing the Warner theaters. Introductions were made by President Giles who sounded a keynote of optimism and co-operation for the common good. The Allied Theaters organization, he said, was an essential body, and one which was more and more making its power felt. He urged strict attention to the business of selling amusement, and suggested that the only way to work was "to work with a smile." Atty. Pettijohn proved a pungent speaker; epigrammatic gems sparkled as he crystallized his thought on the industry in general and present conditions in particular. He said in part:

James J. McGuinness

"It pays to say what you think. That's my habit. The greatest victory our industry ever won anywhere was right here in Massachusetts eight years ago when the people voted three to one in aid of films. I gratefully recall our debt due Gen. Charles H. Cole, George Schaeffer, Jacob Lourie, Joseph F. Kennedy, Jack Connolly, and the others who helped get that 344,000 majority at the polls for our cause. Our theaters, all industry, faces a most unpleasant situation this winter. Government, federal and state, is seeking to tax business to meet increased budgets. This" is a real peril. In war time our production in every line was at the peak, and the market was wide as the world. After the war the countries entered in the competition, yet we did not lessen production. So we were caught with too much goods on our business shelves. You cannot buck the law of supply and demand. So that is one cause for conditions today.

"Another is the psychological condition; there is uncertainty and fear; we have a state of mind nationally that is not healthy. Then we have the depression in the stock markets following the Wall street events of the past year or more.

"It is my conviction that America's business can step out of this depression if—and my 'if' is the important word:—if business and industry can have the co-operation of government, federal and state. The problems of each industry are best solved by the people engaged in that industry, not by commissions, or any outsiders. Every state in the Union is preparing to ask for more money from business; that is one grave danger.

"The situation is alarming. The only purpose such a step can serve is to increase unemployment. If those in each industry will meet, as you are meeting here today, and work out their own problems, and if government does not increase its costs, believe me, we shall most certainly step out of this business depression by the coming May 1.

"The greatest thing to be done is the reduction of costs of state and federal governments.

KNEADING OF KNEES NEED

Otis Skinner, famous veteran of the speaking stage and who made his first screen appearance in "Kismet," now showing at RKO Keith's, is qualified to be a decent follower of the Prophet Mohammed, if only by virtue of strong knee muscles.

These muscles have been cultivated by hundreds of performances of "Kismet" on the stage, in rehearsal and in an old-time silent film version. Mr. Skinner in fact claims that he holds the world's record as a kneeler.

Yet filming "Kismet" with all its knee-bending Moslem prayers, was the most severe tax on Mr. Skinner's well-trained muscles.

Leaves Soon

LUCIA LASKA

"Blues Songs" Howard Favorite's Specialty

The singing of what are called "Blues Songs" has taken a remarkably firm hand upon the public during the past half-dozen years. But few of the girls who have essayed this specialty have succeeded in catching the peculiar lilt and mannerisms necessary to their perfect rendition.

There seems to be a knack in putting over these songs that is difficult to grasp. But Joan Collette of "Record Breakers," now playing at the Old Howard, manifestly has hit the top notch of fame in th's specialty. London and Paris fell before her charms, and she now is "cleaning up" all along the Mutual Circuit.

BENEFIT FOR UNEMPLOYED FRIDAY

A benefit show for the unemployed will be held at the Tremont next Friday afternoon, when the Federation of State, City and Town Employees, with a list of workers headed by Gov. Frank G. Allen, will present a number of stars from the legitimate and vaudeville stage in Boston, who have volunteered their services for the occasion.

Among the many celebrities who are expected to entertain are Florence Reed, star of "Purity," at the Plymouth; George Hassell and Frank Lalor, comedians of "The Street Singer" Company; Frank Crumit, radio and musical comedy star; Mickie Alpert and his broadcasting orchestra, the Lett Sisters, the Reynolds Sisters and Billy Payne, tenor soloist from the Cocoanut Grove Floor Shows, and a host of other entertainers from the various downtown vaudeville houses.

Proceeds from the affair will be devoted to the relief of unemployment, and serving on the committee of advisors are in addition to the Governor and Mayor James M. Curley, Mayor Richard H. Russell of Cambridge, Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton, Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, Mayor Dwight F. Winter of Springfield, Mayor Michael F. O'Hara of Worcester, Mayor Edward H. Lachey of Medford, Mayor Thomas H. Braden of Lowell, Mayor Joseph H. Carriere of Fitchburg, Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham, Mayor Michael J. O'Neil of Everett, Ex-Mayor Agganis of Chicopee, Selectman Edward T. Ferber of Watertown, Edwin O. Childs of Newton and Leverett Saltonstall.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

May I venture to suggest that after Dec. 25 all Boston newspapers jointly agree by telephone to cut the word "bandit" out of the editorial and reportorial vocabularies.

You might keep it on ice for use in case any bandits get busy down in Mexico; but not around here.

For a psychological reason. It covneys to our half-baked young men and their girl friends an idea of daring, adventure, strategy, which they get keen to copy.

For your headlines, thief is one letter shorter, and thieves is at least no longer than the bandit plural; and in place of the semi-heroic they connote the mean, sneaking spirit that would rather rob an honest man or woman of money which they have worked hard for long hours to earn, than to get it by honest work themselves. Nothing heroic about that!

Why encourage it by subtle suggestion?

Waban. JOHN PRETSONTRUE.

People Urged to Press for Bonus Payment

Editor Boston American:

The veterans' bill that would bring immediate prosperity to the entire nation is smothered in Ways and Means Committee.

The Ways and Means Committee of the House has the bill to pay the adjusted compensation certificate in cash in a pigeon hole. If you want the bill taken out and considered write to your congressman and ask him to sign the motion that Wright Patman has filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives. This motion will not be effective unless one-half of the members sign it (218). If you are in favor of this bill, I want to urge you to write to your congressman as soon as possible.

This is a sincere effort to relieve the unemployment and distress by the government, paying an honest debt that has already been confessed by the government. Its passage will not cause taxes to be increased. Business men and others who are interested in our national prosperity, as well as veterans, are urged to write to their Congressmen requesting its passage.

The objection to signing the motion because a different plan is proposed is not a good one. No plan will be considered until a majority of the members sign this motion, then any plan will be given consideration. Mr. Wright Patman has had many requests from farmers, retailers, wholesalers, wage earners, manufacturers and others, as well as veterans, asking what they can do to expedite the passage of this bill. I have received over 2000 copies of Wright Patman's speech. Any veteran who wants one can have it by writing to

Let Voters Decide if Prohibition is Wanted

Editor Boston American:

Today one of the foremost questions is "States' Rights." Political economists say this and that. But the main idea is justice. Would George Washington abide by the prohibition law, were he alive today? I think not. He liked to tipple in a moderate way. He was a temperate drinker and kept slaves.

The South lost their fight for states' rights. Had Stonewall Jackson lived, things might have turned out differently. Lincoln helped turn the tide by freeing the slaves in '63. That bloody fratricidal war has left us problems not yet solved. Lee, though freeing his slaves, led the southern cause.

When two-thirds of the states voted for prohibition it passed, but I'll never believe that the framers of the Constitution would sanction such a law. Just as the incoming national representatives should take their seats sooner, so there are many points in the Constitution which were made for a slow-moving age, problems unimagined.

If we didn't have war we would not have prohibition. A rider was put on a bill in 1917 to preserve wheat, rye, corn and barley for our fighters and our allies. These gifts of nature were not to be used for alcoholic beverages. The bill naturally passed. Later, the country was in the mood to pass the prohibition law.

The only fair way is to put it to a national vote or let each state decide for herself. Is a state sovereign? If a law can be made it can be repealed. Would those who uphold the federal amendments be willing to enforce the one for freedom of the colored people in the South if by so doing they would lose the Southern votes necessary to keep position on the books.

In other words many states in the South want a national amendment on prohibition, but states' rights when the negro is mentioned.

Laugh that off.

All Business Needs Is to Be Let Alone

Editor Boston American:

I go around among business men whose spirits need constantly jacking up these days when so many are afraid to venture into anything, but I call their attention to one of the best things that Former President Calvin Coolidge has said recently:

"If business can be let alone and be assured of reasonable freedom from government interference and increased taxes, that will do more than all kinds of legislation to relieve depression."

Just think this over. To me it grows to be more evident daily.

B. H. GROVE.

EINSTEIN IS HIT AS PACIFIST

Los Angeles, Dec. 17 (AP)—Characterizing Dr. Albert Einstein as a pacifist, Dr. A. D. Houghton, one of the organizers of the American Legion, has suggested action to prevent the visit to California of the famed German mathematician.

The suggestion offered before Los Angeles Legionnaires last night brought forth both applause and expressions of disfavor, but no action.

The attack, Dr. Houghton said, was based upon expressions attributed to Dr. Einstein in a recent New York speech, in which he was quoted as urging men of military age to refuse to fight as a means of preventing war.

Spanish Leaders to Welcome Pilsudski

Lisbon, Dec. 17 (AP)—Luis Barreto Cruz, chief of the protocol, and Lieut. Esmeraldo Carvahais, side to the war minister, and a representative of the Foreign Office are proceeding to the frontier at Villar Formosa to welcome Marshal Pilsudski of Poland, who is due in Lisbon December 19 to embark for Madeira.

Coastguard to Practice

New London, Ct., Dec. 17 (INS)—Boston coastguard destroyers are going to Florida on Jan. 3 for target practice and maneuvers in Tampa Bay, according to announcement at headquarters here today.

Police Chief Fined for Rum Conspiracy

Great Falls, Mont., Dec. 17 (AP)—Ray M. Gaunt, Great Falls chief of police, was convicted today of conspiracy to violate the federal liquor laws along with four members of the police force and 21 other defendants. Gaunt was fined $1000.

Scholarships Are Awarded at Exeter

Exeter, N. H., Dec. 17 (AP)—Phillips Exeter Academy today awarded annual scholarships totalling in value approximately $15,000. Value of the scholarships ranged from $800 to $350.

Baldwin Advocates High Tariff Policy

London, Dec. 17 (AP)—Britain should change her tariff policy, former Prime Minister Baldwin told a Conservative meeting today, and put herself on a protectionist basis as a means of lowering the world's tariffs.

"The summit the world sees as negotiable with our doubloons for imperial economic unity," said he, "there will come into the minds of people and the United States doubt as to whether the high tariff system will be of ultimate benefit to the world."

Dainty Gifts of Beauty and Value

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN broadcaste latest style news over WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

THIS YEAR LET your Christmas gift be something you never could have given before—something so new that it couldn't possibly have been given at any previous holiday season—something so different that the recipient will marvel at your taste and ingenuity—something that's definitely "Christmas 1930"—because it wasn't on the market for any other Christmas—that has loads of charm, usefulness and style.

* * *

THERE IS the stage coach which you may choose in a beautifully hand-carved model to stand on the mantel or the radio cabinet, or in quaint metal forms to act as bookends or door stop.

* * *

THERE WILL BE nothing trite about the gift of an umbrella this Christmas. Quite to the contrary, we expect everyone to be clamoring for them, so ingenious are the new designs. If we are fortunate enough to be the recipient of an umbrella, we expect to go very English and carry it about, fair weather or foul!

* * *

YOU SEE, the object of most of these new umbrellas is to disguise their practical use. Unusual handles and cases that make them appear like walking-sticks are employed with charming results. In colors, too, there is a trend for a closer harmony between the costume and the umbrella.

* * *

THE GIFTS pictured are new, smart and distinctive. The stage coach is perfect in detail and would make a distinguished ornament. The sun-rain umbrella is topped by an airdale's head, that barks, silently. The cover is of fine wood, which folds into sections to tuck in your handbag. The perfumes are Quand of Corday; Guerlais by Guerlain; Sycamore from Chanel, and the very lovely "English Roses" of Mollenelle. The powder box and mirror are of black with white inlay, each with heavy black silk tassel. The beverage set is of clear glass etched in gold. The pajama might serve as a gift idea, too. Its wide trousers are toned amethyst, its Russian tunic top has three color sections—plum, chartreuse and white, held with a sash faced in chartreuse, and caught through two gold rings.

* * *

THERE'S a wealth of new pewter, real reproductions of old designs that weren't even available last year. They range all the way from tiny salt and pepper shakers, standing primly on a tray, to big, handsome covered soup tureens.

MODEL from E. T. SLATTERY CO.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

Andrews of the Governor's Council.

The ring at the top is set with a marquise diamond, whose brilliance is accentuated by the round diamonds that encircle it and the baguettes at either end.
The three main stones in the brooch are rubies. The design is modernistic and is carried out by baguette rubies, fancy cut diamonds and the new pavee setting of small round diamonds which complete the piece.

BROKEN RAINBOWS

Gracie Has Admirer on the Ship

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend. He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but "he has a nice smile." Wilda's father dies and her mother, Gracie, becomes a different woman when the lawyers say the estate will amount to $100,000. She plans a trip to Europe. Wilda has a wonderful time at a house party where Logan asks her to marry him. Myrtle, who is determined to win Logan, turns up at the dock as Wilda boards steamer for Europe. Logan's leave-taking is affectionate. He threatens to become stowaway.

By MAY CHRISTIE
(Copyright, 1930.)

"OH, QUESTIONS of prestige don't interest me," said Wilda.

"Then they better had, or we're spending our money for nothing."

And Gracie disappeared.

She paced around the deck. How long that first class deck did seem. There were plenty of other promenaders.

Plenty of Sun
Gracie Is Particular

"You're sure that this side gets plenty of sun? It looks cloomy to me and as though it'd be draughty."

"No, madam. The ship turns later on. I assure you this is the most sheltered place for you."

"All right. All right." In peevish tones. "Goodness knows I don't want to argue."

"That'll be $1.50 for each chair and $1.50 each for the rugs, madam."

"Good heavens! D'you mean to tell me that the line charges us for sitting on deck when already they've wrangled $650 from us?"

She paid with a poor grace, saw that their names were inscribed on the tags of their chairs and deck-rugs.

"Hello there, mother! Did you find the saloon steward?"

"Yes. They men make me sick. After me paying the line so much, he's gone and put us at the purser's table."

"Why, I've heard that's the jolliest place on the ship for meals. Not half so stiff as the captain's table."

In the Cabin
On Third Day Out

"Oh, nonsense. I've heard that the commander only gets the old dears and the bigwigs, and the first day out and the last day in and between times, if there is any fog at all—he never even my up at meals. But the purser's an old hand. Weather doesn't affect him. I mean, he has no responsibility in guiding the vessel. So he's always there. He picks congenial souls. They say his table is usually very jolly."

But Gracie sniffed. She hated to be thwarted in her social ambitions.

Down in her cabin Mrs. Grace Gardner regarded herself in the mirror.

It was the third day out. The sea was behaving charmingly, and so were the passengers.

"I'm popular, I am." As she turned and twisted her neck before her reflections in the glass she made a further mental note: "And I'm good-looking."

They'd walked one solid hour around the first-class deck, because he was keen on regular exercise, he said, being an Englishman.

Her feet had begun to hurt in her too snugly fitting shoes—but she hadn't really minded much.

'BABY FARM' WOMAN JAILED FOR 5 MONTHS

Emmanuel Girl's Letter Wins $100

$500 GIVEN FOR VIEWS ON SHOPPING

Hundreds Comment on Series on "Making Most of Today's Dollar"

One hundred dollars for writing a letter!

This is the Christmas cash prize awarded to Miss Ruth Grush of Emmanuel College, in the Fenway, by the Boston Evening American for the best letter in a metropolitan contest, commenting on the series of interviews on "Making the Most of Today's Dollar."

These interviews, written by outstanding women leaders of Massachusetts, were the basis of a shopping economics contest in which the students of Radcliffe, Wellesley, Simmons, Emmanuel and Jackson colleges, and Boston University College of Business Administration competed with each other and with employes of Boston stores and offices, and members of the Women's Trade Union League for a total of $500 in cash prizes.

Mystery Shaking of Earth Crust Baffles Science

Maybe you hadn't noticed it, but since Sunday the crust of Mother Earth has been oscillating back and forth beneath your feet from some mysterious cause.

"Beginning Sunday and reaching a climax late Tuesday, a mysterious shaking of the earth's crust has been recorded on the instruments of the Harvard seismograph station. The ground moved back and forth rhythmically and constantly, taking about six seconds to complete each swing.

"It does not go over a couple ten-thousands of an inch in either direction, but even that represents tremendous forces at work

'PORTLAND JOHNNY' IS PARTLY IDENTIFIED IN PAYROLL HOLDUP

VICTIM'S GUN FOUND IN ROOM

Mrs. Frances Wadsworth Held With Walsh in Robbery, but Both Deny Crime

Martin J. Walsh 43 known as "Portland Johnny" was partly identified in Boston police headquarters today by Newton Pendleton as one of the men who held him up and robbed him of a $3500 payroll on Dec. 8.

Pendleton walked over to Walsh at a lineup, placed his hand on Walsh's shoulder and said:

Walsh, after a two-hour grilling by Deputy Supt. James McDevitt, Capt. John Anderson and Inspector George Augusta, admitted living in West Dedham st., but denied knowledge of the hold-up. Mrs. Frances Wadsworth, 23, giving the same address, also denied any knowledge of the robbery.

Police say they found $3785 in change and three revolvers at the West Dedham st., address. One of the guns is alleged to belong to Pendleton.

Walsh was held at headquarters on charges of robbery while armed and Mrs. Wadsworth as an accessory after the fact.

Both prisoners were returned to Boston from Rochester, N. Y., where they were arrested by Capt. Anderson and Inspector Augusta. The police say they found $1650.70 in Walsh's possession and $623.10 in Mrs. Wadsworth's possession when they were arrested in a Rochester hotel.

Police claim that nearly one-third of the total sum stolen in the hold up has been recovered, and that the arrest of two other men in the robbery is expected.

GUNGIRL FAKES INJURY; HOLDS UP AUTOIST

Driver Stops to Aid Her, Kneeling in the Street; She Flees in Another Car

An armed girl tricked Francis James of 121 Museum st., Somerville, into getting out his auto at 1 a. m. today in Hampshire st., E. Cambridge, and then held him up at gun point.

James, who believed at first the girl, kneeling in the street, had been injured, escaped by leaping on the running board of another car that appeared as a confederate of the girl was hastening across the street.

According to James' story to East Cambridge police, the girl bandit wore dark clothing and had on eyeglasses.

When he saw her kneeling in the street, he halted his car, got out and went to her. Then she sprang to her feet with a revolver in her hand and ordered James to hand over his money.

As the girl leaped to her feet James saw a man dart from behind a tree across the street. At the same time another automobile swung into the street. James jumped on the running board and asked the driver to take him to the police station.

HEARST RIGHT IN WARNING STAGE

Bloom, New York Congressman, in Boston for Jewish Celebration Banquet

William Randolph Hearst's right in his warning to New York theatrical producers to "clean up the stage before the government has to do it," Congressman Sol Bloom declared upon his arrival in Boston today.

Congressman B[illegible] is the guest of honor at tonight's banquet celebrating the 275th anniversary of the landing of the Jews in America.

"I thoroughly agree with Mr Hearst that unless theatrical people themselves clean up the stage some sort of drastic censorship will be forced upon them," Congressman Bloom said just before he addressed the meeting of the Washington Bicentennial Commission, of which he is general director.

VERY BAD IN NEW YORK

"The situation, particularly in New York, has become so bad that something must be done, and it is far better for the theater to do its own cleaning than to have an unsympathetic outsider come in and do it."

Bloom pointed out further that the history of the theater for five decades proves that only clean plays have been financial successes and could be revived and made to keep on paying.

CLEANLINESS WINS

"It is, therefore, a matter of common business sense for a self-imposed censorship to be put into effect," he continued. "Objectionable plays that seem to be making money at the moment are an illusion and do not live long. It is only the clean play, the clean newspaper, the clean restaurant that makes money consistently and steadily."

Referring to the decision of Federal Judge Clark in New Jersey yesterday that the prohibition law is invalid, Congressman Bloom voiced the opinion that if the Eighteenth Amendment is given a real hearing in the Supreme Court of the United States along the line cited by Judge Clark, his decision will probably be upheld.

Alma Mammy Not Raising Her Boy to Be a Doctor

He's Learning to Be Wrestler Like Milo and Samson

Collegians Galore Now on Professional Mat

Doesn't it beat the Dutch how many collegians are seeking higher education and a bankroll on the fields of professional sport? Fifteen years ago a collegian was a rarity in professional baseball. Today there isn't a big league team that doesn't have a half dozen sons of Alma Mammy on it. The collegians have invaded golf, hockey and have made the business of professional football a big sports industry. The professional wrestling woods in particular, is full of educated domes and diplomas. It begins to look as if Alma Mammy isn't raising her boys to be doctors or lawyers any more. Before long you are pretty certain to see our institutions of learning adding courses in the manly art of scrambling ears to their curriculums. They will be launching the boys on the sea of life armed with degrees of Bachelor of Biff and Doctor of the Art of Modified Murder and Cranium Cracking. Fellowships in the Royal Academy of Busted Beaks will be most coveted. Blacka Heapa Eyes will have to be added to the fraternities.

According to voluminous press notices sent out by the Boston Garden and the Arena it is learned that next Friday night at the Garden Jim McMillen, with the aid of a diploma from the University of Illinois will attempt to pin the shoulders of the less erudite Hans Bauer to the mat. Added that on Christmas Night at the Arena Ed George of the University of Michigan, who in this section Geo Underwood of the terrain because of his recent victory over Gus Sonnenberg — "Wah-hoo-wah! Wah-hoo-wah! Wahdoon-wah! Dartmouth!" — I hailed as the Champion of The World, will defend his newly won crown against still another university fellow. Bob "Bibber" McCoy of Holy Cross.

McCoy may come on the mat chanting Holy Cross and melodious Mother Machree, Here's to the heroes of [illegible] Here's to the land of the [illegible] Garlands of bluebells and maize [illegible] And I [illegible] Hail to the [illegible] Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue! Pooh, pooh, quoth he! will be the atmosphere [illegible] Bowser and Ray [illegible] bodies wrestling matches [illegible] would pay [illegible] here and be a [illegible] [illegible] college spirit. Nothing [illegible] and Fabiani were big business men then wouldn't be handing wrestling colleges like McMillen, George, Sonnenberg and McCoy so large shares of the receipts. Think of the money they would grab off for themselves, by presenting the collegiate wrestlers tastefully by invitation diplomas. Certainly if McMillen, George and McCoy were played [illegible] in bit of rolled parchment [illegible] of course, be [illegible] dear [illegible] bowed [illegible] but [illegible] the mat!

A CLASSIC SPORT

For [illegible] of course, that the [illegible] college [illegible] wrestling [illegible] put [illegible] abrasive [illegible] Wrestling scenes are carved on the temples of the Pharaohs, and they [illegible] used to grapple for the Nemean Games. Legiate brains are [illegible] with deeds of Hercules Milo [illegible] and those other McMillens, Sonnenbergs and McCoys of the olim and dusty past. No wonder [illegible] how [illegible] [illegible] of Hercules and Milo [illegible] selves.

Milo is the guy who ate a whole ox at one sitting. That's not [illegible] for the modern grapplers to shoot at. Samson still might be champion if John Hallock Asbury and [illegible] a blonde named Delilah cut his hair. The wrestling collegians better keep away from the blondes and the barbers.

The list of wrestlers [illegible] the mere boys [illegible] University Club Wrestling [illegible] up the galloping [illegible] writers, one can immediately put down:

Guy Sonnenberg, Dartmouth; Bibber McCoy, Holy Cross; Ed George, Michigan; Jim McMillen, Illinois; Strangler Lewis, University of Kentucky; Dr. Ben Roller, Pennsylvania; Lee Wykoff, University of St. Louis; Wayne Munn, Nebraska; Nick Lutze, Notre Dame; Stanislaw and Vladek Zbuszko, University of Wausau; Billy Bartush, Chicago University and John Spellman, Brown University.

No, Alma Mammy isn't raising her boy to be a doctor anymore. Apparently there is more gold in them thar wrestling hills.

OLD BILLY MULDOON

After they started mixing the wrestling bills he college grapplers [illegible] Manager a la Wm. Muldoon [illegible] Green Room [illegible] Wrestling in [illegible] Vanity Fair [illegible] with Mme. Margaret Bourgeois, Rose Coghlan, McCullough John Drew and a great cast.

Later Muldoon headed his own cast in "Spartacus, The Gladiator," in the foyer of Madison Square Garden, New York, you will see a wonderful oil painting of Muldoon as Spartacus. Many years of wrestling and trouping had no effect on the superb physique of William Muldoon. Today at 84, Muldoon, now a member of the New York State Athletic Commission, still is a magnificent figure of a man.

If Jim McMillen, the Illinois collegian, gets licked by this crude uneducated, Ensor person on next Friday night, all he needs do is to take to Shakespeare, like William Muldoon. The paths of grappling lead but to [illegible] fame.

McMillen captained the Illinois [illegible] team the year Red Grange played as a sophomore. After leaving college Jim and Red played on the professional Chicago Bears. Jim entered [illegible] as a trainer for Shikat at London. Last we [illegible] Jim [illegible] as partner [illegible] appearing partner of [illegible] Corbett as McMillen [illegible] wrestling team [illegible] Shikat and London [illegible] McMillen [illegible] pond [illegible] Shikat, but the [illegible] eventually beat Corbett.

SAME OLD GAME

Wonder if this Hans Bauer of Chicago, who will be McMillen's waltzing partner on Friday night, is a descendent or relation of Prof. Theodore Bauer, the Russian Bear.

Prof. Bauer was the pioneer of wrestling in this country. After appearing on the stage in Europe as "The Masked Wrestler of Paris" and Venice, all [illegible] he came to this country and did the same for many years. He eventually was tossed by Billy Muldoon and thus joined the troupe of wrestlers whom Muldoon toured the country with just like Paul Boyton, Jack Curley and Ray Fabiani do today with their herds of performing wrestling bears.

Wrestling is an old game and they still stick to the old methods, despite the influx of the grappling graduates of our higher institutions of learning. These present day wrestling promoters are sadly behind the times. They haven't rightly capitalized and commercialized the collegian. The least they could do [illegible] and [illegible] real college [illegible] like

Struggle him and choke him, until he hollers "Maw!"
Hawaw! Hawaw! Hawaw!—

Sullivan Memorial Award for Jones; De Mar Second

New York, Dec. 17 (AP) Bobby Jones' last and greatest campaign has won for him the Sullivan memorial award as this country's outstanding amateur athlete during 1930.

Jones, who accomplished the unprecedented feat of winning all four major golfing championships in a single year, won out by an overwhelming margin over a field of nine other candidates for the award. The award a gold medal goes to the athlete who by his performances and by his example and influence as an amateur and a man, has done most during the year to advance the cause of sportsmanship.

Pointing out in his program for the award that "the athlete who is willing to stand on the public platform and boast of his own prowess is not the type we have in mind," the committee in charge of the award declared that Jones "by his excellence of performance, retiring nature, disdain for acclaim, helpfulness to and generous spirit toward his opponent and fine example under many trying situations, he has endeared himself to all lovers of amateur sport."

Jones received 1625 votes, more than twice as many as the runner-up, Clarence DeMar, famous Marathon runner from Melrose, Mass., who was given 800. Ballots cast for the other eight candidates follow:

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, tennis, 666.

Helene Madison, Seattle, Wash., swimming, 373.

Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania, track, 253.

Tommy Hitchcock, polo, 236

George Simpson, Ohio State, track, 232.

Harlow Rothert, Stanford, track, 138

Stella Walsh, Cleveland, track, 61.

Coach Rudy Hulswitt also has a candidate in the outfield contingent. He is Clifford McSwain, picked up by the new Box right-eye in Mobile, where he hit .320 in 79 games. He is only 22 years old and with a bit more experience will be a real star flychaser, according to Rudy. Other Southern experts say the kid can bat, field, throw and run like nobody's business.

Add to this trio Charlie Small and Jack Winsett, both of whom showed a lot of promise in previous trials with the Sox and John Lucas, a right-handed hitter who batted .347 at McCook, Neb., and it can readily be seen that the least of Collins' troubles these winter days is the 1931 Red Sox outfield.

Everett to Honor B. C. Grid Players

There will be a general turnout of football fans in Everett tonight when Ralph Mallett and Art Conway, Boston College grid stars are tendered a reception and testimonial. Everett likes its football players and it is expected that the large hall will be filled to its utmost capacity.

ROOKIES WILL GIVE VETS HARD FIGHT FOR PLACES ON REGULAR TEAM

By JOE CASHMAN

Fifteen years have come and gone since either local ball club went South with as much promising outfield material as the Red Sox will take down to Pensacola, next February.

There are more than enough weak spots in the Fenway lineup to make Manager Joan "Shoeless" Collins stay awake nights trying to figure out how he can strengthen them but with five tried and true veterans and six highly-touted youngsters available for fly-chasing duty, he need have no worries about his outfield.

Joe Cashman

In fact, choosing the five or six of the eleven to retain, promises to be one of the hardest tasks the new pilot will be called upon to face next spring.

As a general rule, veterans of the class of the Sox regular gardeners are virtually certain to beat out inexperienced rookies in competition, but that may not be the case when this Fenway gang get to battling in the Southland.

If a few of the youngsters are nearly as good as reputed, more than one of last years regulars seem destined to go.

Red Sox Outfield May Be Changed

As our readers will recall, the regular Sox outfield most of last season was composed of Earl Webb in right, Tom Oliver in center and Russ Scarritt in left, with Cedric Durst seeing much relief duty and Jack Rothrock, out with an ankle injury for the greater part of the campaign, doing a little work at the start and finish.

That isn't a bad garden quintet, any way you look at it.

Webb, one of the hardest hitters in the league, batted well over .300, broke up many games with extra-base smashes and while he was very weak in the field when secured, developed into a better-than-the-average fielder before the close of the race.

Oliver, playing his first season in the big show, was a positive sensation. He played in every game, led the entire league by more than 100 in making putouts, led his mates in number of hits and turned in a batting average of .293.

Scarritt, playing his second year in the majors, didn't do quite as well as expected, but an ankle injury handicapped his work most of the way. He showed signs the first part of developing into an outstanding outfielder and may yet.

Durst, secured from the Yanks for Charley Ruffing, never looked strong at the plate, but he fielded with the best of them.

Youngsters May Break Into Red Sox Lineup

Rothrock, of course, had little chance to prove his worth but he showed the year before that he is a mighty classy outfield prospect.

That's quite a lineup to expect the average youngster to break into, but three or four of the new Sox players have a fine chance of succeeding, if their records mean anything.

One of his feats was to set a world's record by hitting three home runs in one inning, and they were made at the expense of three different twirlers. In the same game he made a double and a single for a total of 15 bases.

Physically, he's a second Hack Wilson, being but 5 feet 5 inches in height, and weighing 165 pounds.

Then there is also Van Camp, who comes up recommended by no less an authority than Manager Collins, himself, who had him at Des Moines last year and says he can do everything necessary to become a big league star.

Van Camp May Add Batting Strength

Van Camp is 25 years old, bats and throws right-handed and hit for .344 last year. Being a right-handed batter is to his advantage for outfielders who can hit over .300 right handed, are worth their weight in gold in the big leagues at this moment.

Coach Rudy Hulswitt also has a candidate in the outfield contingent. He is Clifford McSwain, picked up by the new Box right-eye in Mobile, where he hit .320 in 79 games. He is only 22 years old and with a bit more experience will be a real star flychaser, according to Rudy. Other Southern experts say the kid can bat, field, throw and run like nobody's business.

Add to this trio Charlie Small and Jack Winsett, both of whom showed a lot of promise in previous trials with the Sox and John Lucas, a right-handed hitter who batted .347 at McCook, Neb., and it can readily be seen that the least of Collins' troubles these winter days is the 1931 Red Sox outfield.

VETS ON SALEM HIGH QUINTET

Salem high will have a fast basketball team this year, with a veteran front line and several good subs battling for the positions left vacant by the boys who have graduated.

Cullen is the only big boy on the team, although Fred A. Axelrod guard, and a football player, is very husky. The team will rely on speed and some fine plays to win its games.

BRUINS BEAT FALCONS

The Bruins welcomed Jack Beattie, young center, into their hockey family by scoring a 3 to 2 victory over the Providence Falcons at the Garden to remain in a tie with the Chicago Blackhawks for leadership in the American division of the National League.

And it was none other than the red-headed kid, recently secured from the Springfield Indians, who was responsible for the triumph of the Rossmen.

He made a pass to Marty Barry for the first goal of the game in the opening period and came back in the final chapter to take a pass from Harry Oliver and cage the puck for the final winning marker, in a fast and thrilling contest.

A bit nervous at the start, probably because he realized the capacity crowd was watching his every move, he settled down to business towards the close of the initial stanza and from then on gave a display of all-around hockey quality which caused the hard-boiled critics to admit that his debut was one of the most successful in the history of the pro ice game in the Hub.

He showed plenty of speed and courage and proved that he is a fine stick handler and has a wicked shot, but what stood out about his performance was his passing.

He worked in combination with Marty Barry, who was a bit awkward breaking in at wing, and Harry Oliver as though he had been playing with them for years.

Despite Beattie's fine showing and a victory they scored, however, the evening was neither a very happy nor profitable one for the Bruins as they lost the services of Hal Darragh, veteran right wing recently purchased from Philadelphia, for three weeks, if not for the rest of the season.

Darragh came here a week ago suffering from a muscle horse and although he managed to play against the Maroons and Mepin Bruins without any ill effects, he received a bump in the first few minutes against the Falcons which aggravated the injury, and he had to be rushed to City Hospital, where an operation was performed upon his leg.

There are also some muscles and ligaments in the leg torn and it will be a miracle if he does much more playing this season.

Schmeling Shies at Sharkey as Title Opponent

WILL FIGHT CARNERA OR STRIBLING

New York, Dec. 17 (INS)—The doubtful privilege of viewing Max Schmeling in his first defense of the heavyweight title next summer appeared lost to New York today as the result of the State Athletic Commission's action yesterday in giving the German 15 days to accept Jack Sharkey as a title opponent.

Efforts to secure the necessary ultimatum of the New York commission for Jacob Mann to declared early today he would take the heavyweight champion non-top Eight to Chicago if the first efforts of Gotham match on Friday. Sharkey down the throat.

The Garden wants to put the King of the Canebrakes with Victorio Campolo, while Bruno is angling for a Stribling-Carnera brawl in any event, Pa Stribling will see to it that Willie does not become the orphan of this new heavyweight storm

Max the Headliner in Milk Fund Show

Schmeling had been scheduled as the headliner in the Milk Fund show in New York some time in September but with the winner of the winter elimination bouts. After a lengthy conference last evening with the promoters of the Milk Fund show Jacobs declared early today that it could be moved to Soldiers Field Chicago.

"Max and I have no personal quarrel with Sharkey," he said "It is simply a matter of money with us. Stribling or Carnera would draw far more than Sharkey against Schmeling.

"Sharkey is no longer a good card—the small ticket sale for his proposed bout with Campolo showed that. Last summer when we promoted Sharkey a return bout it seemed a natural, but not now.

"Stribling, as a result of his knockouts of Von Porat and Scott and his win over Tuffy Griffiths, rates higher than Sharkey. The man who fights Schmeling must clearly be an outstanding contender. If they try to force Sharkey on us now we will take the bout in Chicago. There is a tremendous German population in that district and Schmeling would draw a monster crowd there."

N. B. A. Will Pursue a Policy of Caution

New London, Ct., Dec. 17 (AP)—The championship committee of the National Boxing Association will pursue a policy of cautious procedure before it makes an attempt to force Max Schmeling of Germany to defend his title in accordance with the six month rule, it was stated here today by Thomas E. Donohue, chairman of the committee.

"The N. B. A. championship committee will act in a manner that will not be considered as harassing to the champion, who is a foreigner," Donohue said. "It is true that Schmeling has not defended his title in six months, but the N. B. A. will be consistent in that it will not compel Schmeling to do what other heavyweight champions in the past and present champions in other divisions have done."

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

One of the things you come across often in you golfing hours and in your noodle time is the golfing theory has to do with the principle of equalized grip. The hands work together during the swinging action, but actually your grip is not perfectly balanced between the two or two of the brothers interests and when the strain of the hand balance comes obtain you have not got scious of it. There are times during the swing when the left hand grips much more tightly, as for instance during your back swing and at the top of your back swing. Again the right hand grip will predominate greatly, as for example at the instant your clubhead hits. Of this, however, you have no consciousness, since your hands act as involuntary muscles. Trying to definitely to make them do what you want them to do often causes golfing mishaps.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston found Jack Sharkey punching away at the small bag at Jim Tolands Gym. Johnny Buckley had just told the American heavyweight champion he had been named by the New York Athlete Commission as the man Max Schmeling must meet in defense of his heavyweight championship.

"I am delighted the New York Commission has ruled Schmeling must meet me again," said Sharkey, "I have been keeping myself in condition by working out regularly. I will not require more than four months of intensive training to put myself into shape for the world's title battle."

Mr. Boston

"Sharkey," chirped Mr. Boston, "will be one of Ernie Schaf's seconds when the interclashes with Max Baer, Coast heavyweight, in a 10-round bout in the New York Garden tomorrow night.

"The American champion was guest of the Whitman Council, K of C., on the invitation of Dr. Martin H. Spellman. Jack told the members he felt confident he would score over Schmeling when they meet again.

New Year's Day Boxing Is Popular

"I believe Eddie Mack made a wise move in signing Roberto Roberti for a bout with Jose Santa at the new Boston Arena on the afternoon of New Year's Day. The holiday has proved a good day for boxing in Philadelphia, Lynn, Salem and other places and should also prove popular here.

Fred Doherty Talks About the Wrestlers

"I met Fred Doherty, able press agent at the Old Howard, parading along West st. Fred says he finds that wrestling is one of the best forms of exercises. He asked me to drop in at the Old Howard this week and take a peek at Jack Sherry, Stanley Stasiak and the other wrestlers who are furnishing a flock of thrills. Fred also mentioned something about a few cauliflower ears he has in his chorus, and I'm passing this information along to those gentlemen who prefer blondes.

"Of course you can say you dropped into the Old Howard merely to take a peek at the wrestlers.

Golden Glove Tourney Has Proved Success

"The Golden Glove tournament being conducted by the St. Joe's Y. A. Society and Mechanics Building has proved a big success. There will be another series of bouts Saturday night. There will be contests at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds. In addition the two finals of the 135s and 160s of last week's show, which could not be staged after midnight, will be run off. In all there will be some 42 bouts. And what a lot of action and laughs.

Another Zivic to Show in Hub Ring

"Fritz Zivic, the third member of the famous Zivic boxing family from Pittsburgh, will compete in the international matches at the Arena on December 29. Fritz is a member of the Pittsburgh team which will battle the representatives of Halifax, Philadelphia, New York and Boston."

"Woody" English No Longer a Bachelor

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP)—The "most eligible bachelor" on the Cubs' baseball team, Elwood "Woody" English, is no longer "eligible."

The romance started where "Woody's" major league romance began—on Wrigley Field. Friends introduced the couple last summer after a baseball game.

"And talk about pounders being matched with Helen in the stands," English said, "but me, I didn't miss any of them when she was watching, and that's a record, I think."

Italian Athletes Win High Honors in Sports

By JOHN GILLOOLY

History in sports is once again repeating itself. Somewhere back in the dim ages, Italy's olive-tanned gladiators thrilled Caesar, his countrymen and his cronies and walked off with the lion's share of the laurels after combat with athletes of other nations in the huge coliseums of Rome.

Occasionally the lions walked off with the gladiators. But that is not here. Nowadays the latest generation of olive-tanned sons from that sunny peninsula that juts out into the Mediterranean are walking off with All-American football honors, sports trophies of every description and a good deal of the wealth of this nation as well.

The Italians are excelling in all sports — coming forth from the melting pot to claim some of the honors that the Irish, Jewish and German Americans have monopolized for a number of years.

Golf—Gene Sarazen and the Turnesa brothers.

Wrestling—Impellitier.

Jockeys—Colitelli and Catrone There are only a few jotted down from memory. The record books would produce many more.

Put them all together and you have a very good reason why Mr. Mussolini's calm should be protruding and his chest expanding.

Grimes Beat Himself in Series, Says Connie Mack

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

So declared Connie Mack, 67-year-old manager of the world champion Philadelphia Athletics, when interviewed by International News Service concerning how his ball club will line up for the 1931 season.

"I like my club just as it stands," said Mack. "We'll no doubt start the season with the same lineup that won the World Series. I see no need of making replacements. Even the oldtimers on the A's should go along in fine shape for another year or two."

The genial baseball master smiled when he recalled certain incidents of the 1930 World Series when the A's conquered the Cardinals. The attack broke into a run when he was handed his Ball Park figures. Because only his pitchers broke in safely the A's Mr. Mack figured.

"Grimes Beat Himself in Two Great Games"—Mack

"Grimes beat himself in the two great games he pitched against us," was Mack's verdict. Mack was quick to speak a kind word for Grimes, however, declaring that he is a great pitcher with a fighting heart." He said that in both games Grimes hurled a fine kind of ball in spots.

"He might have gotten away with at least one of those two games—the last one—if he did not resort to monkey shines," was the way Mack put it. "Aggressiveness is an excellent quality, but it can be carried too far."

Mack's pale blue eyes twinkled as he discussed the fading Grimes case him in the second game. Grimes pitched Burleigh in that one very late in the contest in the eighth inning. To leave what he threw a home run ball to Jimmy Foxx, with the scored tied a second or two after he had been making faces at Al Simmons, who he realized to ground out.

"Grimes got on me when Cochrane was at bat," Mack related. "The count was two and one and Shirley Grimes, trying to help him, gave him the signal more quickly than I usually do. Grimes, a smart fielder, caught the signal. I quickly flashed a recall. Then Grimes started shouting at me something about being a master mind. The first thing I knew we were making motions at each other.

"But he was riding the wrong ball club. You can't ride chaps like Cochrane, Dykes, Foxx and Simmons and get away with it. It is quite possible Grimes, who had been bushing at Simmons, did not take enough care when he threw that one across that box but into the bleachers. Too much aggressiveness, I think, detracted from Grimes' otherwise magnificent pitching in the World Series."

OUSTED 'FROSH' BRING CHARGES

Springfield, O., Dec. 17 (AP)—Charges that Wittenberg College representatives had offered special inducements to obtain the enrollment of two Cleveland high school athletes were investigated by the faculty committee on school officials today.

The accusations were made by John Sutter, captain of the Lakewood high school team a year ago, and Robert Bixler, former all-state quarterback at Cleveland Cathedral Latin, both of whom were dismissed with 14 other members of the Wittenberg freshman squad two weeks ago.

At that time the college announced the ousted youths had been promised aid by "outside interests," but Sutter and Bixler asserted last night that the offers came from officials of the school. Sutter exhibited a letter from D. L. Keyser, director of admissions, which stated that "you may depend on any promises made to you by the representatives."

Keyser said that in writing the letter he was "merely giving formal assurance" that what ever promises had been made to him by a representative of the college would be carried out." He said he did not know what promises might have been made.

The dismissal of the 16 freshmen players followed Wittenberg's recent readmission to the Buckeye Athletic Association after having voluntarily remained outside the conference for a year because it had been charged with proselyting.

356,294 SAW HARVARD PLAY

The total attendance at Harvard varsity football games the past season was 356,294 as against 356,294 when it was in 1929, according to the figures released by Carroll F. Cuthbert, business manager of the Harvard Athletic Association. The total number of spectators in 1929 was 356,294 as compared with the record attendance at Crimson football games in 1929 of 410,189.

Despite the changes in comparison with 1929, the past season's attendance figures were larger than in any season previous to 1929.

The falling off this season may be accounted for by the difference in size of the Michigan and Harvard stadiums, the new structure which greeted most of the major games at the Autumn season this year.

Last season at Ann Arbor he Harvard team performed before a crowd while the Crimson's crack at the Harvard Stadium was packed before 45,000. Rain has prevented a capacity crowd from attending this season, yet 60,000 out of a possible 80,000 saw that game.

The Pennsylvania game accounted for 58,000 tickets, but only approximately 50,000 of these were used because of rain. This year's Holy Cross encounter attendance fell off also. In 1929 the crowd was 55,000 and 50,000. But this year only 39,000 came because of threatening rain clouds.

The Harvard and Yale game at the Polo Grounds played before a capacity throng of 74,280 persons. During the season 42,190 persons saw the games on season tickets and H. A. A. books. There were 282,779 reserved seats and 4877 admissions. Complimentary tickets were given to 12,924 members of local high schools for the Yale game and Springfield game. Ushers, ticket takers, photographers and reporters accounted for 7344 in the total attendance.

Brookline High Forfeits 3 Games

Headmaster Ernest Caverly of Brookline high has sent letters to the Central, Latin, Waltham and Newton high school headmasters announcing that Brookline forfeits three games which it won, since the schools named because Brookline used an ineligible player. Ineligibility of the Brookline player was the player. He was ineligible because his course which he did not give him the necessary number of credits.

As Rozantes was only a beginner in football and his play was not of any great value to Brookline the forfeiture of the games does not detract from the fine record of the team through the grid season.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Rarely have the Bruins ever passed up as many fine opportunities to score as they did against the Falcons. At least five times they had an open net to shoot at but they always shot wild or delayed too long.

Mickey Ion and Rod Shaver were the officials and very lenient ones they proved. They saw only the more flagrant violations of the rules and the result that the whistle blowing was reduced to a minimum, and the fans had a most enjoyable evening.

Three times was the game delayed because Tiny Thompson discovered something wrong with his equipment, which required a few minutes to remedy. At the start of the second period Jack Adams halted play for a spell while he assured the officials over something or other. And later in the same period, a fuse blew, causing several lights over the Bruin goal to go out and an accident took many minutes to repair.

Ebbie Goodfellow passes with as much speed as he shoots, and the intended receiver never has a chance of stopping the puck. He would be a great player if he would pass with less energy.

Tommy Filmore, one of Detroit's injured players, is one of the best golfers in Canada and is a pro at a Detroit country club when he is not representing that city on the ice.

Frank Frederickson, former Bruin favorite, played a short while for Detroit, but he showed none of the class that he had when he first came to the Hub. His playing days appear to be numbered.

Not Sure of Her Love; Ask Him to Wait

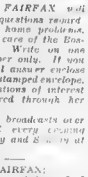
—By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding love and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope, otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6:30 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Won't you please help me? I have been very friendly with a young man for over two years. I have always thought of him as a big brother and a chum. Now he tells me he loves me and that he loved me since he first saw me. He has asked me to marry him. He is handsome, wealthy and has a loveable personality; but I do not love him. He tells me it will break his heart if I refuse him. Do you think that if I marry him love will come later on? Sometimes it seems I do love him, but I am so afraid it is just an attraction that will pass. JEAN.



Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Jean—If you are in doubt as to the true state of your heart, why not ask the young man to give you a little more time? Surely he will not mind waiting and wooing you and trying to make you love him, if he really loves you.

Card Is Enough

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am 16 years old and I am [illegible] a young fellow of [illegible]. He comes to visit me nearly every Sunday and I never fails to call me up each night. I should like to know if it would be correct for me to give him a gift for Christmas. If so, what would you suggest?

FRENCHIE.

Dear Frenchie—If you are in any doubt as to whether you should give this boy a gift, I would suggest that you do not. A gift is not obligation to give a gift to a man unless engaged to him, and even if he gives you one, and you have only given him one, you need not feel that you have offended in the least degree. I think a nice card or at most a nice initialled handkerchief would be quite all you may do with propriety.

Ask Him to Your Home

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 18 in love with a fellow of 22. At all good times that I attend he is there and we have good times together. He is shy in coming me out. Is it because I am younger than he? Please, Miss Fairfax, tell me what I can do to have this fellow ask me out. I will be waiting for my answer in your column of the Boston Evening American. ANN.

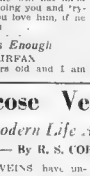
Dear Ann. I hardly know what to suggest not knowing anything about the boy. He may be bashful, and wish to take his own time about making any advances, and, of course, there is a possibility that your feeling of interest in him is not reciprocated. As long as you meet each other frequently at parties, etc., why is it necessary to be "asked out?" That is, after all, a provincial way of showing interest in a maiden. Have good times together, if the opportunity presents itself, ask him to your home, and gradually build up a feeling of good friendship that will not depend on movies, rides, and being taken out for acquaintance.

Varicose Veins Inherited

Modern Life Also Responsible

—By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.—

VARICOSE VEINS have undoubtedly troubled mankind ever since the days of Noah. Of course, it is an ailment that has become more common since this time. No doubt we may attribute this increased prevalence to our modern manner of living.



Dr. Copeland

Whenever the word "varix" is used, it refers to an abnormal swelling. That is exactly what we are dealing with. Varicose veins. The veins are unduly large, appear swollen, and there is stagnation of blood in the affected vessels. The poor circulation is due to the loss of elasticity in the walls of the veins.

The condition is most commonly seen in adult women, particularly after childbirth. It is sometimes met in male adults, particularly in men whose work requires long and uninterrupted standing.

No one cause can be held responsible for this condition. Sometimes, even under the same conditions of living, are much more liable than others to the formation of varicose veins. On that account the ailment has been considered hereditary. Undoubtedly this factor plays a role in the condition.

People with varicose veins should never wear tight garters or other constricting clothes. If constipation is present it should be corrected. Avoid standing as much as possible. When resting after a day's work, the feet should be elevated on a couch or chair.

The use of the rubber stocking is of doubtful value. It soon loses its elasticity and when worn after that happens, it does more harm than good.

For mechanical support your physician will bandage your legs with a "figure of eight" dressing. After you have watched him apply it a few times, you will have no difficulty in applying the bandage yourself. For this purpose it is considered good practice to use an elastic gauze bandage. Such bandages are not only elastic, but they can be kept clean.

Needless to say, this ailment is one that requires the personal and skillful attention of the physician. Under his direction you may hope for relief.

What's in Fashion?

—Directed by AMOS PARRISH—

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—For a very small item of costume detail, the clip is certainly the hardest working fashion we've ever seen.

It does noble duty brightening up hats. It holds dress scarfs neatly in place. It accents the point of a decolletage or neckline, and fastens a belt as securely as a buckle.

It holds stray strands of hair in a net chignon for evening. Makes a decorative note on slippers or handbags. And of late it's assumed a new role—clipping a flower prettily on a shoulder or a coat lapel.

All of which makes a clip a safe bet as a Christmas present that will please any fashion-knowing woman.

Even if she has a clip, she can use another. Because every costume should have its own—one that looks as though it were intended to go with that costume and none other.

That's why you find so many different kinds. Clips that sparkle with rhinestones or crystal or marcasite. Clips of different colored stones — emerald, ruby and sapphire. Clips of enamel and clips of shell. Clips of gold and of silver. And clips of carved turquoise, jade or coral. Even clips of feathers for the sports hat.

Of course the all-white clip is the most useful. That is—the clip of rhinestones or marcasite set in silver. It can be worn with any costume and is especially effective on the fashionable black one.

To be sure, this is the type clip most everybody has—if they have any at all. So the smartest thing to do is to think of a particular costume, or some particular jewelry that she wears a lot, and select a clip that ties up in color with the color of the costume or the jewelry.

Many Sizes and Shapes

The medium size clip is the one most in fashion. Some of the newer ones are much larger and these are generally seen in the evening, worn at the front or back point of the decolletage or on a shoulder strap.

Other new ones are very small. And this is a good size to wear in pairs. Because pairs of clips are just twice as smart as one clip. And this smaller size works particularly well this way.

Fashionable shapes are many. The usual ones are conventional in design—geometric figures like squares, rectangles, diamonds and shields—or flower designs. But there are unusual long, narrow ones. Clips that bear the wearer's monogram and clips that are purely amusing or sentimental if you wish—like the dog's head shown above.

These clips can be as inexpensive or as expensive as you like—depending on the stones that make them. And either way they're smart and in fashion. If you want to get expensive, then a new fashion is the clip watch—a tiny, sparkling timepiece that clips onto the dress or the cuff or wherever you want to wear it.

Unquestionably a clip is a practical gift. Because it can be worn in one spot today and in another spot tomorrow—a moveable decoration, sort of—actually doing the work of several pieces of jewelry.

"Why, you were only a baby!"

"Well, hardly that. But I was very young. And inexperienced."

She sighed. She didn't in the least know why except that she craved sympathy, and this big, good-looking man was being so overwhelming to her.

He had nice blue eyes. A small, military mustache. And his neat-featured face was floral

Gracie Flattered

Stranger Meets Her

He loved the open air. It seemed. Spent most of his time in the country.

He drew her out. To her surprise that she could interest him —for she had always heard that Englishmen were egotistic

He insisted that she hold his arm, although the ship wasn't showing any rolling or pitching proclivities.

"It slants, you know, and you might slip. You American ladies have such tiny feet and slender ankles that a mere man wonders however they can support you . . ."

Was he trying to make fun of her? Did he mean that she was overweight? She glanced at him dubiously, inquiringly.

He raised swift protest

"Why, madam, you are slender and 'svelte.' I was only meaning to convey a compliment to you."

She smiled up at him, well pleased. He was the first man-of-the-world she'd ever met. It was delightful that he found her so attractive

He said it by implication. Nothing crude. It was a sweet and subtle form of flattery.

Nor—at each round of the deck, when they passed the Gardners' chairs—did he show the least tendency to set himself by the recumbent form of Wilda

An American man of his age —she told herself—with equal good looks and prosperity, would probably pick out a flapper to flirt with if he were traveling solo.

But he liked her—Grace Gardner, aged 45. It was a delightful omen.

And always he lauded the charm . . . the intelligence . . . the "savoir faire" (whatever that meant—she didn't know) of the American woman

"Beautiful creatures traveling alone without any masculine protection—"

"We American girls—"—she dared the noun, because it was obvious he did think her young—"can take care of ourselves perfectly."

"Ah! but that should be some lucky man's privilege," he had rejoined flowery.

Gracie had thrilled to that. It was almost tantamount to a proposal.

He wasn't a married man, of course? If that were so—with his views of women having to be looked after—he would be pretty certain, wouldn't he, to have his wife with him on the vessel?

Still, with his good looks and niceness and his age—he must be all of 45—it would be odd if he had escaped matrimony so long.

She wished that she were clever enough to draw him out on the subject

Maybe he was a widower? In that case, both literally and metaphorically, both of them were in the same boat.

That being so, wouldn't it be too wonderful if this should prove to be the hand of fate? If they should find in each other a life long consolation?

Odd how a "something" had impelled her into Cook's that day! Something psychic certainly had shoved her into the [illegible]

And a phrase—a highbrow phrase she must have read in one of Wilda's books, and never really understood till now—came back to her: "There are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed of in our philosophy."

He drew her to a halt at a little door that led from the outer deck to the smoking room

"It's quarter to one. We've walked quite a few miles. Don't you think that you and I deserve a cocktail?"

She stammered "It's very kind of you to suggest such a thing, but—well—I've never touched one—"

Would he think her very old fashioned?

U. S. Cocktails

Absolutely Poisonous

"I'm glad to hear it, because the things they serve as cocktails in the U. S. A. are absolutely poisonous."

She threw a glance along the deck to see that Wilda was out of range: "I believe I'd like to try one . . ."

A few moments later ensconced in a circular nook in the dim oak precincts of the ship's smoking room, she was sipping a sweet potion called "Clover Club

"O-oh! It tastes good."

"It won't do you any harm. Was it her fancy, or was he and those simple words did he move nearer her?

She took another sip. It gave her a gay feeling of self-confidence. That and the presence of this charming man beside her.

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Dec. 17—Joseph A. Broderick, New York state superintendent of banks, [illegible] ... frankly and fully the pointed questions I had publicly addressed to him [illegible] ... manner in which the affairs of the Bank of United States [illegible] ... were conducted. Neither the [illegible] ... responsible for the depositing of an abnormal amount of New York City official funds and of New York State funds in the suspended institution. But [illegible] ... the essential [illegible] ... how essential [illegible] ... the bank has come forward with replies to the equally pointed questions addressed to it. Indeed the bank enjoyed extraordinary political [illegible] ... has ever [illegible] ...

B. C. Forbes

"Why did the State Banking Department allow such a title as 'Bank of United States' to be used over the protests of responsible New York bankers?" I first asked Mr. Broderick.

"As I was not then in charge of the department, I cannot answer that question, Dr. Kuhn knows, however, that if the institution does not expire, it would not permit its title to appear on a bank emitter to employ such a name," he replied.

* * *

"How long ago did you first receive an unsatisfactory report concerning the condition of the Bank of United States?"

"Many, many months ago. In fact, I was eager to approve a merger of the bank with another institution last fall, but on the eve of the completion of the deal the Wall Street panic broke loose. That, of course, killed the arrangement.

* * *

"How can you explain your failure to take effective action all this time—12 months or more? If you knew that the bank was in bad shape, why permit it to go on taking money from depositors?"

"The records will show—and most bankers in the city know—that I have been the very opposite of inactive in regard to this whole matter. I became known in the world for the State banking superintendent to do is to close a bank. That can be done by the stroke of a pen.

"Several large deals have been arranged and once or twice practically completed for taking care of the Bank of the United States. The newspapers have reported several of these. Investors applied by the planned merger with the Bank of Manhattan Trust Co., and, more recently, the depositors' combination which was to be headed by J. Herbert Case, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

"Surely, the very fact that only a couple of weeks ago it was taken for granted by everybody that the Bank of United States situation was to be taken over and go into a large combination sponsored by the most influential banking interests in New York supplies adequate justification for my having kept on trying and trying to avoid closing the institution, with all the trouble and loss that the closing of a bank usually causes.

"The Bank of Manhattan and other deals which were planned furnish convincing evidence that the status of the Bank of United States was not hopeless and that I would have been short of fulfilling my duties to the utmost had I arbitrarily suspended the bank while possible steps were still open for safeguarding it, all its depositors and its stockholders."

* * *

"On these questions I prefer not to express an opinion. Contrary to some newspaper talk, I never went on record that depositors would be paid 100 cents on the dollar. I am working night and day with a view to doing the best possible proceeding to conserve the interests of the depositors. The arrangement enabling depositors to borrow up to half of their total deposits indicates that unusual consideration has been given to their plight."

* * *

"Why was the opening of a new branch sanctioned by you a few weeks before the bank closed?"

"That branch was actually sanctioned before I took office. Had I forbidden its opening at the time it was opened, you can imagine the storm the spreading of this news would have made—first, in the immediate locality of the branch, and, second, throughout the city. Remember that at that time it looked practically certain that the problem of caring for the bank by United States and its depositors would go through."

* * *

"By what unique coincidence were the bank's losses figured out during the week of examination by your department as equaling, to a penny, the institution's total surplus and profits?"

Mr. Broderick consulted the examiner's official report. The [illegible] ... was given per penny. [illegible] ... Doubtful items did not tally to a penny with the bank's surplus, but the figures were near enough. Mr. Broderick readily admitted it was a coincidence.

"Did he discuss the point with you before the compiled his report—instead of any politician or politicians—discuss it with you?"

"First, let me state very plainly that the bank examiner did not consult me. He will know that we are not in the habit of doctoring facts and figures. Some of the items he wrote off have been recovered. He finishes his report by pointing out the need for complete change in the management.

"Second, as to politicians and political influence: Not a single politician, either New York or Albany or anywhere else, has ever approached me with any request in connection. I never was in politics."

Mr. Broderick started in the banking business in 1914, was a member of the original committee appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury to work out a technical organization of Federal Reserve Banks, was later appointed chief examiner of the Federal Reserve Board, for nine years was vice-president of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, and was a member of the Kammerer Commission to Poland.

"So, Mr. Broderick went on, "I alone am responsible for every step taken by the State Banking Department. We have nothing to hide and nothing to excuse."

* * *

"Do you mean to infer that the Bank of United States, with its enormous deposits of New York City and New York State public money, was not politically favored?"

"That," said Mr. Broderick emphatically, as he closed the interview, "is not at all in my habitual. It has nothing whatsoever to do with the banking department. I can answer only for it."

Spectacular Rise Is Made on Curb

New York, Dec. 17—Curb stocks moved spectacularly in the early trading today, as a virtual stampede of shorts together with powerful bank purchasing brought a wild turn in prices. The deluge of outcrying continued in persistent manner until the final gong with closing quotations sharply above previous closing levels.

Utilities were well in the van of the bull drive, with Electric Bond & Share bounding up from its low of a net advance of almost four points. American Gas & Electric jumped with a gain of almost 7 points, with similar movements evidenced in all other utility stocks.

DENY BOSTON BIDS FOR N. Y. BOND ISSUE

New York Dec 17 (INS)—Reports that Boston banks have been asked to quote prices on a possible issue of New York City transit securities were vehemently denied today by Mayor Walker and Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the transit commission.

"If the report is true I am so far I would know about it and I don't," said the mayor.

"The report is inaccurate and misleading," said Untermyer. "If any banks have been asked to consider underwriting securities the action is premature."

In flatly denying that any such official request had been made and that any agreement, however tentative, has been reached between the city and the subway owners, Mayor Walker said:

"They (the bonds) haven't been offered and we should not ask anybody for a price on them? Why should the bankers know anything about it before I do?"

Enormous Gain in Electricity Users

Statistics collected by United States Electric Light & Power Shares from authoritative sources show that although the average evening peak demand hour in the electric light and power industry was 4 per cent less than a year ago, more than 615,000 new customers were added to the electric light and power companies and the total annual consumption of electricity per domestic customer was 10 per cent greater in the first three months of 1930 than in the same period of 1929. Total revenue from the sale of electric light and power was 4.4 per cent greater in the first nine months of 1930 than for the same 1929 period.

Increases established in the single month of September, 1930, included: 2145,000,000 added to the value of plant and equipment; 436,000 added billowatt generating capacity, 66,000 added customers of all classes, and 1000 added miles of transmission lines of 11,000 volts and over.

Coal Workers Show Decrease in Month

After rising seasonally to the average level of 1923-25 in October, unemployment and wage payments declined in November, according to indexes compiled by the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank based largely on the Anthracite Bureau of Information by 147 collieries employing about 100,000 workers with wage earnings amounting to over $3,100,000.

The number of workers declined 2 per cent and the volume of wage earnings dropped 16 per cent between October and November.

Employment index stood in November at 87.8 per cent of the 1923-25 average, showing a decline of 7 per cent from November, 1929. The payroll index at 83.55 was nearly 5 per cent lower than a year ago.

Copper Stocks Put Under Heavy Pressure

Copper stocks were freely sold today, with Anaconda at another new low level. Recently copper shares have been under exceptionally heavy pressure. Some are selling at one-fourth to one-fifth of their highs last year. How many dreamed when Nickel sold as high as [illegible] ... from Londa at 174, last year, that they would sell at 19, 21¾ and 25½ this year?

The copper situation is not good, but it is no worse than when those same shares were selling at double current prices. Some say copper will go down again to 9 cents. It may, but when copper was selling close to that figure seven weeks ago, copper stocks were considerably higher than now.

Newmont on the Curb, a big holder of copper stocks, touched a new low today around 41. It sold originally several years ago at $49 a share and initial trading was around $16.

Leaders of Oils Off to New Lows

The Standard Oils were swept into the lowest level in five years or more by the renewal of persistent selling. The independents, including Texas Corporation, Sinclair, Barnsdall and Pure Oil, moved down to the lowest prices of the year.

I. T. & T. Dividend Outlook

Selling on a 9 per cent yield basis, International Telephone & Telegraph obviously reflects nervousness over continuation of the $2 rate. Directors were inclined to maintain the payment at the last meeting only in hope of early improvement in general business conditions.

Selling Climax Close at Hand

Action of the market indicates that it is approaching a point from which a substantial technical recovery may take place. That is to say, the market's action is analagous to that which preceded similar such movements in the past several months. The current heavy liquidation is generally believed to mark the finish of distress selling and liquidation of collateral loans by interior banks. In addition, the increased volume which has accompanied the present sharp setback has all the earmarks of a typical "selling climax" which normally marks at least the temporary culmination of a period of liquidation similar to that through which the market is now passing.

Better Resistance by United Corp.

Relatively better resistance displayed by the corporation of affects important scale down accumulation for the account of interior banks generally affiliated with the management of the company.

Drug, Inc., Under Renewed Pressure

Renewed pressure against Drug, Inc. is the outstanding feature. One of the "distress stock" is still overhanging the market. This "situation" with respect to this stock has been practically cleaned up, but there are still some remnants of the liquidation to be absorbed in the market. Consequently those frequently identified with constructive operations are closely affiliated with the management of the company.

Texas Dividend Cut Discounted

When Texas Corp. dipped below 30 with the yield rising above 10 per cent, it was generally regarded that the stock was discounting a lowering of the dividend.

U. G. I. One of Favored Utilities

Savoy investment demand probably will develop in United Gas Improvement on any further setback in price. It is one of the highest-type utility stocks.

RALLY COMES AFTER NEW DECLINES

New York, Dec. 17—Stocks closed strong today after moving upward throughout the afternoon under the impetus of vigorous short covering.

The spectacular change of trend sent bears into a panicky retreat, and prominent shares surged up 2 to 10 points as they scrugged to buy the stock they had sold short.

SALES OVER 5,000,000.

Total sales of more than 5,000,000 shares were piled up for the first time since early October. The several rallies soon after midday, on the heels of a morning decline of 1 to 6 points, which recorded a new three-year low. The grain markets firmed in sympathy.

American Telephone, after dropping 4 points, rebounded more than 8 from the bottom. Allied Chemical converted a similar loss into a gain of nearly 3. U. S. Steel, after sagging a point to a new low since 1928, closed about 4 higher. Case & Auburn surged up more than 10.

Other shares gaining 4 to 6 points included American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Baltimore & Ohio, Dupont, Eastman, Lowes, North American, American Water Works, Sears Roebuck and Westinghouse.

Issues closing up 2 to 3 included Anaconda, General Electric, Pennsylvania, New York Central, New Haven Union Carbide, and Woolworth. Sun Oil issue as Standard of N. J., General Motors, and Radio made net gains of around a point.

STEEL COMMENT CHEERS

American Metal Market said that steel producers who had not been over-optimistic regarding improvement in January now regard the steadier price structure "to influence buyers all down the line. It added that many buyers now feel that there is a better chance of prices advancing than declining further. Steel, however, expressed the opinion that the price structure remains largely untested.

The midweek petroleum statistics showed a small decline of 62,000 in gasoline stocks, although refiners increased their operations by 3 per cent.

This could not be construed very favorably in view of the comment of The Lamp, official organ of Standard of New Jersey, which said that the refiners must cut their production from 7 to 8 per cent. if the troubles of 1930 are to be obviated next year. Crude production showed a slight gain.

George Leigh-Jones, president of the Shell Oil Co. of California, however, was moderately optimistic on sailing for Europe. He said there is an increasing tendency to co-operate and to use remedies to improve the industry. Wholesale gasoline at Chicago continued to ease, with quotations of 4½ at 4¾ cents, against 4¾ to 4⅝.

Call money came down to 2 per cent, after renewals at 2½, reflecting the easing of the money market by the government overdraft at the Reserve bank. Money moved up from 2 per cent last Friday for the first time in more than two months.

Most Rail Bonds to Remain 'Legal'

New York, Dec. 17—Most railroad bonds now legal for the investment of New York state savings bank funds will retain their legal status after the close of the year, even if no change should be made in the state banking law, according to analysis by Moody's Investors Service.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Hardships from cold weather on the fishing grounds were reported as 29 steam trawlers and schooners, encased in ice, came into the Fish Pier with their catches.

Mackerel fishing is the worst at this time, due to weather, than it has been for many years.

"MARU" MEANS—

"Maru," a Japanese word, which is the end of the name on every ship that flies the flag of Japan, except the Pacific liners, is a word that has caused considerable controversy on the waterfronts of the world among maritime men. It has been differently defined and given rise to many arguments. Learned Nipponese have given conflicting views on it. Now comes Frank K Bell, assistant passenger manager of Nippon Yusen Kaisha, greatest if western ship companies, studying possibilities of this port, who states he traced the derivation of the word after a great deal of research. Back in times prehistoric the Japanese, a nation of lovers of the sea, named their best beloved deity Maru To him they gave credit for the success they had in learning to build structures that would carry them over the water. From the love of this deity Maru, it began to have a general application to everything beloved. It retained its early significance, Mr. Bell explains, as ships and has, in this connection the implication of placing the vessel under the protection of the gods. A Japanese sailor would not sail a merchantman that did not have Maru as part of its name.

LECTURER

POSTPONE SERVICE

Postponement of the opening of a direct service at low rates from Boston to Europe which was to be inaugurated in all italian liners on 20 by the newly formed New England transatlantic line has been announced. The reason given is the present general depression in ocean passenger traffic. The line was scheduled to start maintaining a schedule of two sailings monthly from Boston to London and Antwerp with differential rates. The plan was originally brought to public view in September when Major James M. Curley announced that J. Gordon Douglas head of the new company would start a direct Boston service in competition with existing lines and at a lower rate.

WALL ELECTED

Frank J. Wall, general traffic manager of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, was elected to membership in the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the governing board held yesterday. Mr. Wall was formerly president of the New England Steamship Co.

TWENTY PILOTS

Twenty pilots, out of a total of 25 in Boston harbor, have been nominated as members of the Foreign Commerce Club by Capt. Mortimer C. Nickerson of the Mystic Steamship Co., it was announced by Ellery Elwell, president of the club. The names have been favorably acted upon. Capt. Nickerson stated that the other five pilots would soon be members.

CHRISTMAS ASHORE

The crew of the Coast Guard cutter Tampa, which has been out on winter patrol, came into port yesterday for 10 days' relief and liberty, which will take them until after Christmas ashore. They were relieved by the Mojave.

Hoover's Unwise Message

Frankness Conspicuous by Its Absence

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S message to the Senate requesting ratification of the newly negotiated League Court protocols is as "complicated and obscure" as he apparently desired to make it.

Mr. Hoover DOES NOT TELL THE SENATE that these new protocols do not meet the condition contained in the fifth reservation of the resolution by which the Senate ratified the original protocol in 1926.

Mr. Hoover DOES NOT TELL THE SENATE that, instead of giving to the United States the same veto in regard to the League Court's advisory opinions that the dominant nations of the League possess, these new protocols merely concede the right of this country to withdraw without prejudice when its veto is overridden.

Mr. Hoover DOES NOT TELL THE SENATE in simple and straightforward language that the dominant nations of the League had rejected reservation Number Five, refused to agree to its condition, and substituted a protocol OF THEIR OWN DRAFTING which they deem "proper" for the Senate to ratify.

Mr. Hoover attempts to break the force of these disputable facts by circumlocution.

After reminding the Senate that its ratification of the original protocol was conditioned upon the acceptance by the other powers of five reservations embodied in its resolution of ratification, Mr. Hoover says:

"Consent to four of these reservations was promptly expressed at a meeting of the nations member of the court, and after negotiations undertaken with the approval of President Coolidge, two protocols were drawn to revise the statutes of the Court in order to embody this consent and also to meet the fifth reservation."

Of course the Senate will not be confused either by the "complicated and obscure" language of the Hoover protocols or the evasive circumlocution of the Hoover message.

These Hoover protocols are the very documents of which George Wharton Pepper has recently said:

"When after four years I heard it said 'the other nations have accepted the Senate's conditions,' I was mildly astonished; because the Old World diplomats are not apt to yield. However, I studied carefully and with an open mind the complicated and obscure documents offered us as the equivalent of the clean-cut Senate provisions, and when I had finished I said to myself, 'THERE IS A JOKER IN EVERY PARAGRAPH.'

"This so-called equivalent fails to give the protection upon which we insist. It is a subtle attempt to tie us up to the League of Nations through the Court."

Study carefully and with an open mind the complicated and obscure language of Mr. Hoover's message transmitting these documents to the Senate, and you will find that there is also a joker in every paragraph of that message.

"There is no wisdom like frankness," said Benjamin Disraeli, one of the greatest British statesmen that ever lived. Mr. Hoover, who is so fond of following British statesmen, should imitate Disraeli.

Mr. Hoover has sent to the Senate an unwise message, because frankness is conspicuous by its absence from every paragraph.

Letters to the Editor

We Are Proud of Our Heavy Correspondence

If you are a constant reader of the "Letters to the Editor" from our readers, our friends and our critics, you are enjoying and profiting from one of the most interesting features contained in any newspaper in this country.

Letter writing, in this day of general speed and quick communication, is not the art nor is it the temptation as when Washington, Jefferson and Franklin, for example, were transcribing their ideas and ideals.

To many it is a difficult, if not a quite hopeless task. It requires persistence and patience; then fluency follows. It requires experience, because good writing is the narration in simple terms of our acquaintance with facts, our powers of observation and of analysis.

Spelling is relatively of minor importance, because new forms and new usages are frequent and because many of the examples of the finest writings which have withstood the test of time and competition were notorious for their poor orthography.

But brevity is an essential today as it was in the time when the famous French lady besought forgiveness for her long letter "because I am too busy to write a short one."

The Boston Evening American publishes as "A Paper for People Who Think." There is nothing good and nothing accomplished unless thinking makes it so.

So, it is with satisfaction we say that people who think out their problems and their messages for the common good and who desire to have them published in this newspaper contribute a volume and a quality of correspondence unmatched elsewhere in this country, if in the world.

'HOW'S YOUR HEART?'

By NELSON HARDING

Asks Santa Claus. "I trust I'll hear
The beat that brings good cheer and hope

The Christmas spirit tests the heart
To see if we will do our part
And help the needy; and there's more

A Call to Service

Solomon Lewenberg Set Worthy Example

The memory of Solomon Lewenberg is easy to perpetuate. His devotion to the public service and his brilliant and courageous battles against the encroachments of the public utility corporations when he was a member of the Gas and Electric Light Commission are engraved in the records beyond our poor ability to enlarge or detract.

But in the dedication of the Solomon Lewenberg Junior High School at Dorchester, Former Governor Fuller expressed a sentiment and delivered a call to honest public service which is worthy of repetition. Governor Fuller said:

"I hope the boys and girls who attend this junior high school will improve their opportunities as Solomon Lewenberg did, and then, when they have received their education at the public expense, I hope they will always place it at the public service with such unswerving devotion to truth as he did.

"Let me say to you that if we can have enough of our citizens devoting themselves in this spirit to the welfare of the country, then the future is secure."

It may be that service to the people in a democracy does not secure the material emoluments. But many a man of wealth would renounce it all if his memory could be made to endure in the hearts of a grateful people as Solomon Lewenberg's has done.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

IF CHAIRMAN LEGGE will note that Idaho farmers are now burning their wheat, all he'll have to do is to invest one penny in a box of matches and the problem of how to get rid of that $100,000,000 worth of his will be solved.

* * *

THERE IS always a bright spot if one will look for it—It will be noticed that this Christmas one cannot find on the market any made-up neckties, with elastic bands to go around the collar.

* * *

AND WHAT'S become of the smart Aleck who used to wear a steel band under the lapel? And sometimes when he wasn't thinking, he would take off his coat in a hurry, and the blamed thing would shoot across the room like a boomerang, and hit an innocent bystander in the eye.

* * *

PROF. GODDARD perfects a rocket that can carry a man to the moon, and all he's working on now is how to get him back.

* * *

ITS BEGINNING to look as though that Democratic-Republican coalition recently solemnized by Rev. Hoover was only a companionate marriage.

* * *

WE PRESUME that all the literary lights who donned the mantle of O. Henry" immediately upon the death of that genius, are now writing for the magazines under assumed names.

* * *

WE OBSERVE from the public prints that the Republican party has just taken a wallop in Spain. As they said about Indiana and Illinois and Ohio, it's due to world wide conditions.

* * *

WITH CHILD labor increasing at an appalling rate, the only reason we don't solve the unemployment situation by sending the grownups to the factories and the kids to school is that it's too simple and doesn't call for a $1,000,000,000 appropriation by Congress.

* * *

DOUG FAIRBANKS is going to India to hunt big game. He will first leap over six elephants in a row, and kill the tiger by swinging it around his head by the tail.

* * *

* * *

AS CHRISTMAS draws near the average kid becomes as nervous as a dry Congressman in the presence of a constituent who knew him in his drinking days.

* * *

THE DONKEY'S coalition experience with the elephant ought to be warning enough to him to keep clear of all foreign entwinglements.

Listen, World! Belittling

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Reading "Fan" Mail Is a Bang

ONE OF the big bangs about a job like this is reading your Fan mail. Letters from those lads and lassies who make a business of knocking public people. I'm not the only one. We all get them. One day they'll take a wham at Winchell. Next day they'll pick on McIntyre or Heilin ger, or maybe hurl a spitball at Helen Rowland or Winifred Black.

Elsie Robinson

What do they write about? Oh —everything. Maybe you said "was" when you should have said "were." Maybe you quoted the Bible—didn't quote it. Maybe they don't agree with your views on Single Tax or the Fourth Dimension. Or are mad at you because you haven't any views. Whatever the reason, it's of secondary importance. The main thing is —they wanted to knock. Any excuse will do to hang it on.

Now of course this isn't unusual. We all enjoy a spell of knocking now and then. But knocking isn't a now-and-then diversion for the Always Belittling Gentry. It's their serious occupation. They live for it and thrive on it. Some of them write daily to their chosen target. They keep this up for weeks, then select another victim. I have, at present, a lady contributor who has been heckling me daily for months —daring me to answer her—enclosing special delivery stamped envelopes so I would answer.

One thing ails them all. Each and every belittler is haunted by a sense of his own failure. But of course that failure is never his fault. Life had the wrong sort of parents. Or the wrong sort of training. Or he never had a chance. And he's all burnt up about it. He longs for that importance which life has denied him.

So he heckles . . . writes sneering letters. Or vicious "for-your-own-good" advice. Complains to the editor that he'll (though frequently it's a she) stop his subscription if the writer isn't fired. And, if perchance he can arouse a comeback, his joy is complete. He has shown 'em!

Always belittling—you may not be a writer, but you, too, have met that tribe. There's one in every family—one in every office. You wonder why they're so mean. What have you done to them? You're just a means to an end—that's all. No matter what you do, or don't do, the always belittler will try to get your goat. For goats are what he lives on.

So don't take an always belittler seriously. They exist, as sour bugs and tarantulas and cockroaches exist, and are, I suspect, a two-legged version of the same breed. Be that as it may, there's nothing you can do about them. And why be bothered, anyway? Who are they belittling? Nobody but themselves!

Dress Up, Dress Well

Clothes Make a Difference, They Give Courage

THE ARCHDUKE OTTO, ALL DRESSED UP

The young Archduke Otto, son of the late Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, who calls himself now "King of Hungary," attained his majority recently at eighteen. At that age Hungarian kings, when there were any, used to come of age.

Hungarians who believe in kings and want to see this young man on the throne, in spite of all that happened to them with their other kings, are joyously celebrating the young man's "majority."

In honor of the occasion Archduke Otto dressed himself up finely in a magnificent Hungarian costume, and for the first time, having reached his majority, he wears the Order of St. Stephen, a very grand order.

THE SAME ARCHDUKE, IN ORDINARY CLOTHES

Even the expression of the face changes with different clothes. The young archduke in his uniform, wearing the magnificent costume of the Order of St. Stephen, looks as though he could defy the world.

In his plainer clothes, seen in profile with a rather weak chin, he seems to be asking himself, "What is the world going to do to me?"

You can't wear the magnificent costume of the Order of St. Stephen. But you can "dress up." You will remember that a man is judged at first ALWAYS by outside appearances. Later inward worth and qualities are known.

But appearances decide in the beginning. Be neat, not gaudy, dressed in clothes that fit, that are well cared for and that indicate SELF-RESPECT.

Suppose that three men apply for a job, two of them a little shabby and one with clothing well cared for, neat, the third looking the possible employer straight in the eye, with confidence. Which of the three probably would have the first chance?

P. S.—Bear in mind that dressing well, and neatly, means dressing well FROM THE TOP OF YOUR HEAD TO THE SOLES OF YOUR FEET.

A man who has succeeded and hires other men understands details, and NOTICES them. He notices shoes, out of repair; he notices a necktie well chosen, clean; he notices shirt, gloves, hat, as you notice every detail on an automobile.
